South Brunswick Islands All Over Raleigh Radio

BY SUSANNE D. SARTELLE, EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT South Brunswick Islands Chamber Of Commerce

Thursday is the big day! The Southern Women's Show begins in Raleigh, and the South Brunswick Islands will be all over the radio for four days. So far WPTF has been promoting our area for about two weeks in preparation for the show.

At the show, our booth will be next to the radio station's and we will be decorated all "beachy." We also have lots of prizes to give away including a beach vacation. In the booth across from us, a telephone company will be giving away free long distance, promoting "talk to your family to plan your beach vacation.'

This is our last travel show of the season. It has been a good year for promotions, and we have done more shows than ever before. That is largely due to

SARTELLE the support of our local towns and their commitment to promoting tourism

Next week, we have a very special event that we don't want you to forget about. Bosses, have you sent in the registration form for your secretary to go to the appreciation luncheon on Wednesday? Better hurry. Today is the deadline.

The luncheon is on Wednesday from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m. and it's for secretaries, administrative assistants and clerical workers. In addition to a mouth-watering lunch, there will be a fashion show and entertainment by the West Brunswick High School Chorus. Last year, they put on a real show!

Secretaries, don't be above reminding your boss about this luncheon. You deserve it!

I also want to send out a reminder of another fun community activity coming soon. Mark your calendar for the chamber's third annual golf tournament, June 8. More details later.

Carolina Power & Light Posts Gains In 1990

Carolina Power & Light Co. increased its quarterly dividend for stockholders by 3 cents in 1990, bringing the annual dividend to $3.04 per share, according to the utility's 1990 annual report.

While energy sales remained about the same as the previous year due to mild weather, CP&L showed an increase in revenues of over $2.6 billion, reflecting the last increment of a 1988 rate increase that went into effect in August.

CP&L reported net income of $380 million and earnings per share of $4.36, up from 1989 net income of $376 million and earnings per share of $4.20.

The year included start-up of a new distribution maintenance plan and lowering of peak demand by more than 1,248 megawatts. In terms of reliability and productivity, fossil fuel units operated at an average equivalent availability of more than 88 percent, while the nuclear units achieved a capacity factor of over 66 percent.

The utility is planning for sales growth averaging 2.2 percent a year over the next 10 years. While existing plant is expected to meet the basic power requirements, the company plans to add about 2,000 megawatts of combustion turbine generation during the decade to meet peak-time customer demand.

CP&L recorded a non-cash write -off of $81.6 million in 1990 following resolution of the final aspect of its 1988 rate case in North Carolina. The state Utility Commission to reclassify as abandoned plant and not include in its rate base an additional portion of the utility's investment in the Harris Plant near Raleigh, where only two of four planned units were completed. The commission also disallowed from inclusion in rates recovery of $142.2 million for what it determined to be an avoidable five-month delay in construction and for certain engineering and construction rework at the plant site.

Headquartered in Raleigh, CP&L serves about 3.5 million people in a 30,000-square-mile territory in North Carolina and South Carolina. It operates a mix of 16 fossil, nuclear and hydroelectric plants with a total generating capacity of 9,654 megawatts. These include the Brunswick Nuclear Plant at Southport.

Both men and women in their mid-30s begin to experience slight but gradual bone loss, said Rod Peterman, manager of diagnostic imaging services at Cape Fear Memorial Hospital. Women are most affected after menopause when bone loss for them increases to a rate of six times higher than that of men, he added.

"By the age of 70, one out of every four women develops an osteoporotic fracture," Peterman said.

To prevent fractures, women should be aware of certain risk factors such as menopausal hormone loss, calcium deficiency, physical inactivity, alcohol consumption, cigarette use, drug use and accident hazards.
