

Three Men Get Seven-Day Sentence For Assaulting Southport Man

After trying unsuccessfully to defend themselves in Brunswick County District Court Friday, two brothers and another youth were found guilty of severely beating a Southport man in Southport last April.

Jason Scott Pelfrey, 17, his brother Chad Pelfrey and their friend Bobby Farrar, 19, of Winnabow were sentenced to seven days in jail and ordered to pay for the medical bills incurred by Terry Mangum after the three allegedly beat him with their fists and a nightstick in the driveway of the Pelfrey's home.

Judge Jerry Jolly also sentenced Jason Pelfrey to an additional seven days in jail after also finding him guilty of causing $1,933 damage to Magnum's pickup truck during the incident.

The three were taken into custody following the verdict and later released on bond after appealing their case to superior court.

Magnum testified that he was punched and kicked by the three men after he attempted to prevent them from assaulting Robert York, who was a passenger in Magnum's truck when he stopped to pick up a friend at the Pelfrey residence.

The three are scheduled to be tried next month on assault charges brought by York.

As the pickup truck stopped in the driveway, Chad Pelfrey walked over to the passenger window and punched York in the face, Mangum testified. Then he said the brothers dragged York out of the vehicle and continued beating him.

Mangum said he got out of the vehicle to assist and was "sucker-punched from behind" by Bobby Farrar. The Pelfreys also punched and kicked him, breaking his nose and opening cuts on his face, Mangum testified. The wounds required nine stitches and subsequent reconstructive surgery that cost him a total of $7,360 in medical bills, he said.

Southport Police Sgt. Lee Smith testified that when he arrived at the scene, Mangum was "bleeding profusely" and had lost consciousness. He said the pickup truck was "a total wreck" and that the three defendants were "combative and disorderly" and appeared to have been drinking.

Jason Pelfrey claimed that it was Mangum who started the altercation by attacking him with a nightstick. He testified that he took the stick away from Mangum and "hit him in the face and on the body" with it. Pelfrey said the truck was damaged when one of his blows missed Mangum and hit the vehicle's windshield.

The alleged nightstick was not offered into evidence. Nor was it mentioned to investigators after the incident, Sgt. Smith testified.

In addition to their active jail terms, the three were given 30 day suspended sentences and put on supervised probation for two years. Each defendant was ordered to pay court costs, a share of Mangum's hospital bills and his lost wages.

Jason Pelfrey was given an additional six-month suspended jail sentence and ordered to pay $1,900 for Mangum's damaged truck.

The case was appealed to superior court.
