Milton Coleman Picked To Chair National Panel

Brunswick County Extension Director Milton Coleman has been named chairman of the Extension Programs Committee of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

COLEMAN

The two-year appointment was made last week at the association's annual conference in Baltimore, Md.

He will be responsible for coordination of four professional improvement programs, including the Environmental Protection Through Responsible Use of Pesticides program, the "Search of Excellence" professional papers competition; development of the Applied Science and Technology Seminar; and seeking out programs for the association's annual meeting that focus on Extension's national initiatives. These include water quality, waste management, food safety and providing educational programs for young people with behavioral problems.

Coleman will share an information network with contacts in every county in the country.
