DURING WEEK 2 OF PROMOTION

Area Officers Hand Out 21 Tickets

Brunswick County law enforcement officers issued 21 of the 9,562 citations handed out statewide in the second week of the "Click It or Ticket" seat belt crackdown, according to figures released Oct. 18 by the Governor's Highway Safety Initiative office.

Two random checkpoints were set up in Brunswick County between Oct. 11 and 17. Statewide, there were 893 checkpoints.

No child safety seat citations were issued here.

Leading the state's 100 counties in citations was Wake, where 894 tickets were issued for seat belt violations and 24 for child safety seat violations at eight checkpoints.

Bringing up the rear was Alleghany County, with only four seat belt citations and no child safety seat tickets.

Since "Click It or Ticket" began Oct. 4, law enforcement officers throughout North Carolina have written 21,948 tickets—20,643 for seat belt violations and 1,305 for child safety seat violations.

Drivers and passengers caught not wearing a seat belt or using child safety seats are being fined $25. Fines from the citations go to the school system in each county.

Besides seat belt and child safety seat violations, law enforcement officers statewide have made 2,606 charges for other violations during the first week and 2,628 charges during the second week of "Click It or Ticket."
