

The Family That Plays Together Wins Together

Perserverance paid off Sunday for a family of friendly competitors.

The Grice, Donaldson and Dowdy households of Bennettsville, S.C., claimed all three trophies in the 1993 N.C. Festival By The Sea sand sculpting contest.

Stormy weather postponed the event from Saturday to Sunday, but an afternoon chill, high winds and even the thought of the two-and-a-half-hour drive home didn't weaken their enthusiasm for the project.

It's tradition: The extended family gathers two times a year—Easter and Halloween—at Holden Beach. Each Halloween weekend, you'll find family members of several generations digging, patting and pushing sand on the beach across from the Campground By The Sea on the west end of the island.

"We've been competing the past four or five years," said Sylvia Grice. "It would have been a shame if they couldn't have done it this year. They really look forward to it."

Only one thing was lacking: An audience to cheer the sculptors on. "Their remarks are usually so encouraging and appreciative," said Mrs. Grice. "I missed them this year."

Family members not only compete but usually win, bringing home one or more trophies, including Best of Show in 1992.

This year Travis Dowdy was skeptical as he walked away from his team's intricate spider web and spooky-eyed black spider. "Are you sure we got second place?" he asked. "Are you sure they didn't mix up the trophies?"

Judging is based on originality, artistic merit, design and neatness. This year's judges were T.J. White, Iola Ballinger and Jerry Owens, Campground By The Sea campers.

NO TANGLES IN this neat web, which won Travis Dowdy and teammates (not pictured) Jerry and Cindy Dowdy second place in the N.C. Festival By The Sea sand sculpting contest.

THE SMOOTH CONVEX SURFACE and delicate tracings of this "sand" dollar won artists Jeremy Donaldson, Johnnie Grice and (not pictured) Sylvia Grice first place.

A GHOST, a grave and a Jack-O'-Lantern made a timely entry for a competition held on Halloween. William Lockamy, Matthew Donaldson and (not pictured) Shannon Dowdy claimed third place with their handiwork.
