Man Who Threatened Sister Sent To Prison For Treatment

A 37-year-old Leland man was sent to prison for treatment of alleged substance abuse after being found guilty in Brunswick County District Court last week on charges of being drunk and disruptive and communicating threats against his

Vertie Wilkins of Town Creek Road testified that her brother Bruce Williams approached her while intoxicated and told her, "I'm going to (mess) you up." She said she had been assaulted by her brother on other occasions

Assistant District Attorney Marion Warren pointed out to Judge Napoleon Barefoot that Williams had previously been arrested on charges involving alcohol and assaults on females. The prosecutor recommended that Williams be sent to prison long enough to participate in the N.C. Department of Corrections' Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Training (DART) program.

The judge agreed and sentenced Williams to six months and 29 days in prison, with 28 days credit for the time he spent in jail awaiting trial. If paroled early. Williams was ordered not to "assault, harass, abuse, threaten, follow or communicate with" Wilkins.

Judge Barefoot presided over three days of district court in Bolivia last week. District Attorney Rex Gore and assistants Warren and Don Kelly offered evidence for the state while Marie Jordan acted as courtroom clerk.
