Johnson Serves As Page In Raleigh

Willa Roena Johnson of Bolivia recently served as a page with the Governor's Page Program in Raleigh.

Johnson spent the week of Nov. 8 providing clerical and administrative support as a page in the Department of Correction.

"This program is a great way for young people like Willa to see firsthand how state government works," said Gov. Jim Hunt. "They play a vital role in making our government run smoothly, and I hope this experience will pave the way for future leaders of our state."

Pages are assigned to various state agencies to assist with day-to-day office operations. While in Raleigh, they tour several government buildings including the Capitol, the Legislative Building, the Executive Mansion and the Museum of History.

Pages are recommended by their teachers, principals or members of their community to serve a one-week term. The program is open to high school students between the ages of 15 and 18 who maintain a B average.

Benson Is Honored

GS-12 Samuel Benson recently received the Navy Meritorious Civilian Service Award.

His wife Peggy is the daughter of Katherine P. James of Womble Street, Yaupon Beach.

Benson was cited for superior performance of duty while serving as a quality assurance officer at Shore Intermediate Maintenance Activity, Portsmouth, Va., where he is currently assigned. "There, he played the central role in the command's designation as the first shore facility on the East Coast to become certified to repair non-nuclear propulsion plants on nuclear-powered ships," according to a Navy news release.

"He also significantly improved the unit's quality assurance program, upgrading training, inspection procedures, instructional manuals, and work processes. In addition, he provided excellent technical advice and assistance to U.S. Atlantic Fleet aircraft carriers concerning their quality assurance inspections and audits.

The awards, presented during formal ceremonies, "is official recognition for Benson's outstanding performance, diligence, professional expertise and steadfast dedication to quality customer service," according to the Navy.
