Man Facing Fourth DWI Charge Gets Four Years In Prison

A 33-year-old Castle Hayne man was sentenced to four years in prison last week after pleading guilty in Brunswick County District Court to charges of failing to stop for a police officer while driving without insurance after his license was permanently revoked for repeated drunken driving convictions.

Court records show that the defendant, Victor Dale Sullivan, was tested for alcohol in his blood while unconscious at New Hanover Regional Medical Center after a serious automobile accident in Navassa last August. Three other people were injured in the crash, according to the warrant completed by Trooper D.A. Lewis of the N.C. Highway Patrol.

The test indicated that Sullivan had a blood alcohol content of .18 percent. At the time, the state considered a person to be impaired when the blood alcohol content reached .10. That legal threshold has since been lowered to .08.

After checking Sullivan's driving record, Trooper Lewis charged him with felony DWI, failure to yield for a police, fire or emergency vehicle, driving while his license was permanently revoked and operating a vehicle without registration or insurance.

Sullivan pleaded guilty to the four traffic offenses Wednesday (Dec. 15). He appealed the cases to superior court, where he faces prosecution on the charge of habitually driving while impaired. He has previously been convicted of DWI in New Hanover County on Oct. 25, 1988, and twice on July 7, 1993, court records show.

Judge Napoleon Barefoot Jr. sentenced Sullivan to two consecutive two-year sentences and ordered him to take part in the prison system's Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Training (DART) program.

Barefoot presided over three days of court in Bolivia last week. Assistant District Attorney Rick Green prosecuted, while Marie Jordan served as courtroom clerk.
