Grief Is Topic Of Upcoming Program

A professional development program/teleconference to assist caregivers, family members and volunteers, "Living with Grief: Personally and Professionally," is set for Thursday, March 31 at Brunswick Community College.

Co-sponsored by Brunswick Community College and Lower Cape Fear Hospice, the program is scheduled from 1-4 p.m. in BCC's Administration/Learning Resources/Student Center.

Local panelists will provide an introduction session at 1 p.m. They include Jean Pelletier, spiritual bereavement counselor; Larry Andrews, Brunswick Funeral Service; Greg White, Coble-Ward-Smith Funeral Service; Bill Newnam, Peacock Newnam Funeral Service; and the Rev. Richard Warner, St. James the Fisherman Episcopal Church.

Following the introduction, the teleconference will explore these questions: What is grief? Who experiences it? Dealing with the grief of patients and families: what do caregivers need to know?

Also to be discussed are support groups and other interventions, and how caregivers can deal with grief.

The program will conclude with a discussion session.

To pre-register, call the Brunswick Community College Continuing Education Department at (910) 754-6900. There is no charge for the program.

Annual Upkeep Dues Payable

It's time to pay annual dues for maintenance of Chapel Hill Cemetery at Shallotte.

Anyone with a family member or loved one buried in the community cemetery is asked to pay $5 each spring so that the grounds can be mowed regularly.

Dues to the Chapel Hill Cemetery Fund should be sent to either Nocha White, P.O. Box 132, Shallotte, N.C. 28459, or Inez S. Gray, 398 Gray Bridge Road, Shallotte, N.C. 28459.

Anyone who removes faded flowers or other debris from a gravesite is asked to take the trash away, rather than leaving it in or around the cemetery, said Gray.

The cemetery is located on U.S. 17 just north of Shallotte.
