Incumbent County Board Survives Primary Election

BY ERIC CARLSON
All four of the incumbent county commissioners who faced opposition in Tuesday's primary were endorsed for another re-election bid in November as 31 percent of Brunswick County voters went to the polls.

There will be no need for a runoff vote, despite a three-way race for the Democratic District 2 nomination. Bill Sue of Leland was able to pick up 45.7 percent of the 7,105 votes cast in the race, which was 5 percentage points more than the total required to win outright.

Sue needed 2,843 votes to avoid a runoff. He received 3,243, followed by Michael Ballard with 2,681 and Dan Davis with 1,181 votes.

County Commissioners Chairman Don Warren of District 1 ran the closest race, defeating Democratic challenger Randy Stanley by a margin of 3,862 to 3,536. Warren led the voting in 17 precincts, while Stanley won five.

District 3 Democratic incumbent Wayland Vereen soundly defeated challenger Louie Lewis 4,555 votes to 2,861, while fellow Democratic board member Tom Rabon won over Tom Simmons 4,369 to 3,193.

On the Republican side, a new challenger for the District 3 seat has emerged with Leslie Collier edging out the 1992 nominee Bob Slockett by a narrow margin of 1,202 to 1,116.

Former Calabash Mayor Douglas Simmons had an easier time defeating Frances Ludlum Babson 1,284 to 897 for the District 1 nomination.

The widest margin of victory went to incumbent District 4 Republican Commissioner Donald Shaw, who overwhelmed former Leland Mayor S.L. Doty 1,502 to 657.

Only one candidate filed from each party for the District 2 commissioner seat, which was uncontested in the primary. Incumbent Republican Jerry Jones will face W.A. "Alfonza" Roach in that contest. Also gaining his party's nomination without a primary race was Republican candidate Pete Barnette of District 4.

Warren said Tuesday he was pleased to see all the sitting commissioners renominated.

"It shows support for our leadership," Warren said. "It shows that people are looking for sound fiscal policy and aggressive leadership."

Vereen said he "couldn't be happier" about the outcome and said he wanted "to thank everyone who came out and voted." He took the victory as an endorsement of his actions on the board.

"It tells me I'm a good listener," Vereen said. "Folks have a lot of concerns out there and I've tried to help as many as I could."

His opponent in the November election, Collier, said she was "overwhelmed and excited" about the outcome and praised Slockett for running a good race.

"I feel very honored to be selected as the county commissioner candidate from District 3," she said. "It's going to be an uphill battle, but I'm certainly up to it. I feel there are a lot of people who are interested in seeing a change in our county."

Simmons was also pleased with the way the voting went.

"I'm just as happy as I can be," Simmons said. "I can't wait for November."

Aldridge, Soles, Redwine, Hill Take District Contests

No Republican candidates filed in multi-county races for 13th District Judge, 18th District Senate, and 14th District House, putting winners of the Democratic primaries in those seats.

13th District Judge
Former assistant district attorney Tom Aldridge of Whiteville will become the 13th District's newest district court judge. Claiming 44.8 percent of the vote in the three-county judicial district, he bested Shalotte attorney and former judge Wayne Long and fellow Whiteville attorney G. Phillip David. Aldridge received 10,980 votes.

Long led the three-way Democratic primary vote in Brunswick County with 3,839 ballots, but finished behind Aldridge in Columbus and Bladen counties, garnering a total vote of 8,238. David picked up 3,314 votes districtwide.

18th Senate
Incumbent R.C. Soles Jr. will return to the Senate for an 10th term, brushing off a Democratic primary challenge Tuesday by a persistent campaigner, former House member Ron Taylor of Bladen County.

The 59-year-old Soles, a Tabor City attorney, has served in the state legislature 26 years and is presently deputy pro tempore of the Senate.

Soles collected 14,564 votes in Brunswick, Bladen and Columbus, the three counties that comprise most of the district. Results weren't available from Robeson and New Hanover counties at deadline.

14th District House
State Rep. E. David Redwine of Ocean Isle Beach and Rep. Dewey L. Hill of Lake Waccamaw were winning easily Tuesday night over their low profile challenger, G
