Brunswick County 4-Her Competes In National Wildlife Habitat Evaluation

Judah Lindsay of Long Beach was among North Carolina state competitors attending the National 4-H Wildlife Habitat Evaluation Contest Aug. 6-10 near Cedar City, Utah.

Lindsay was accompanied by coaches Cindy Townsend and Carmen Coles.

Teams from 30 states competed in five categories designed to teach responsible management of natural resources. They were asked to identify common wildlife foods, interpret wildlife habitat from aerial pho-graphs, prescribe wildlife management practices and develop both rural and urban wildlife management plans.

According to a 4-H news release, Utah is a unique area to study because it contains all five of the most common wildlife management zones: hot desert, mountain, alpine, cold desert and pinyon/juniper.

After the competition, Lindsay took advantage of fishing, target shooting, hiking, mountain biking and horseback tours near the mountain ski resort.
