

Shell Point Man, Wife Charged In Break-Ins

A Shell Point man was arrested last week on charges of breaking into four homes in the area, while his wife also faces a felony charge for allegedly trying to pawn some of the stolen property, a Brunswick County Sheriff's detective said Monday.

Hank Rodney Williams, 31, of Shell Point Road has been charged with four counts each of breaking or entering and larceny, according to Detective Gene Caison. The suspect's wife Donna Clemmons Williams, 28, is charged with one count of felonious possession of stolen goods.

Williams is accused of stealing television sets, microwave ovens, fishing tackle and other household items from three homes on Shell Point Road and one on Woodthrus Lane in the Shell Point Acres area. The thefts occurred last February and March, the detective said.

Caison said his inquiries led to the couple after some of the stolen goods turned up at local pawn shops. An investigation is continuing. Both suspects have been released on bond.

In other crime reports on file at the sheriff's department Monday:

■ The manager of a Southport grocery store believes that a bomb threat was broadcast by "some outside signal" over his intercom system Saturday night. The manager told Deputy Malcolm Long that he was in the store at about 9:20 p.m. when a voice came over the loudspeakers saying, "There is a bomb in the building. If you don't get out, everyone will die." No explosions or deaths were reported.

■ Two Leland area women were arrested on felony charges of breaking or entering and larceny stemming from the theft of more than $3,450 worth of property from two homes on Maco Road last month. The two are accused of stealing a video cassette recorder, a telephone answering machine, a computer, a rabbit-fur jacket, two leather jackets and a wedding dress during an Aug. 26 break-in. Detective Steve Mason made the arrest Friday.

■ Someone broke into a storage building outside a home on Winter Street, off Fall Street in Summer Place subdivision, Supply, last week. A neighbor noticed the shed door open Thursday and notified the sheriff's department. Deputy Rebekah McDonald determined that a hasp and lock were removed with a set of bolt cutters found nearby. Missing was a riding lawn mower valued at $1,500. The owner said the shed was broken into once before. Similar footprints were found leaving the scene on both occasions.

■ More than $1,800 worth of household appliances were stolen from a home on Mercury Lane, at the end of Mulberry Street, Shallotte, sometime in the past two weeks. The owner told Deputy Robert Long that he believes the suspect entered through a front window and stole two television sets, a microwave oven, a washing machine, a dryer, a dishwasher, a computer and a cable television box. A suspect was identified.

■ A well pump, a color television and a microwave oven valued at a total of $859 were stolen from a mobile home in the East Tanglewood subdivision, Supply, sometime in the past month. The Spartanburg, S.C., woman who owns the trailer returned recently and discovered that someone had pried open her front door, causing an estimated $100 damage. Deputy Jerry Gray took the report.

■ Nearly $1,500 worth of photographic equipment was stolen from the trunk of a car parked on Wayne Street in Leland last week. The owner told Deputy Brian Sanders that he put his camera bag in the car Thursday and noticed that the trunk was partially opened the next day. When he looked inside, the bag containing two cameras, four lenses and two flash attachments was gone.

■ A neighbor apparently foiled an attempted theft on Cherry Tree Road in Bolivia Sunday afternoon. The homeowner told Deputy Steven Trull that a friend saw two men trying to remove a chair from her home at around 2:30 p.m. When the neighbor challenged the two subjects, they "dropped the chair and fled" in a gray Volkswagen Jetta.

■ Someone stole a radio out of a car parked outside a home at the Azalea Mobile Home Park, Leland early Sunday morning. The woman who owns the car told Deputy Trull that she left her car parked in the area at about 3:45 a.m. and returned an hour later to find that a combination radio/compact disc player had been removed. It was valued at $200.

■ A man who was hunting near the Faith Baptist Church in Bolivia told Deputy Gray that his .357 magnum revolver was either lost or stolen after he came out of the woods Friday evening. The man said he remembers putting the gun and holster on the roof of his truck just before driving off. The revolver was valued at $228.

■ There was about $150 damage, but nothing reported missing, in an apparent break-in attempt on Long Leaf Hills Drive in the Evergreen Estates subdivision, Bolivia, Saturday afternoon. The 24-year-old man who lives there told Deputy Lewis Ward that someone "kicked the front door of the residence and broke it into pieces." A suspect was identified.

■ Detective Lt. Donnell Marlowe is investigating a report of fraud involving the sale of some land last month. A 25-year-old Leland woman said a county magistrate witnessed the signature on a sales contract in which another woman agreed to accept $3,500 for a piece of land. When the victim went to the register of deeds office to record the transaction, she discovered the land actually belonged to a Wilmington man, the report said.

Registration Deadline Is Set Friday For Master Waste Managers Program

Sept. 30 is the deadline to register for Brunswick County's new Master Waste Managers program, "Sorting It Out Together."

About 20 Brunswick Counties will be accepted in the initial training and volunteer program developed by the N.C. Cooperative Extension Service and offered by the county's recycling program and cooperative extension service. It will be offered on seven consecutive Monday evenings from Oct. 10 until Nov. 28.

Heather Sandner, county recycling coordinator, said the program's objective is to provide participants with in-depth education on solid waste—"how we currently manage our trash in Brunswick County and what management options we have besides landfill disposal."

Sessions will cover such topics as recycling, waste reduction, household hazardous waste and composting. Two weekend tours are planned to the county landfill and to a recycling facility in Wilmington.

In exchange for the training, certified Master Waste Managers will pledge to volunteer 25 hours of community service over the next year in a concept similar to the Master Gardener Program the extension service offers.

Those interested in registering should call Sandner at 253-4488 workdays between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The training is free, but there is a $20 charge per participant for manuals and other materials.
