

Woman Gets 30 Days On Prostitution Charges

A 34-year-old Leland woman was sentenced to 30 days in jail last week after pleading guilty to prostitution charges in Brunswick County District Court.

The defendant, Teri Lynn Crisp of Village Road, entered guilty pleas to charges of engaging in prostitution and remaining in a public place and engaging in conversation offering sex for money.

Crisp was arrested on the night of Aug. 26 as the result of an undercover operation by the Brunswick County Sheriff's Department narcotics squad in response to complaints from citizens about being approached by women offering sex for money.

The squad sent Detective John Ingram to a Leland convenience store where many of the complaints originated, according to narcotics officer Lt. David Crocker. At around 8:50 p.m., Ingram said he was approached by Crisp, who offered to have sex with him for $40.

"She even consummated the deal by going inside and buying a package of condoms," Crocker said after the arrest.

In court Wednesday, Crisp initially announced her intention to plead not guilty to the charges, Crocker said. She changed her plea to guilty after Ingram was called into the courtroom to testify.

Judge David Wall combined the two convictions for judgment and sentenced Crisp to 30 days in Brunswick County Jail, to run at the same time as any sentence she might presently be serving.

There were three days of district court in Bolivia last week at which Judge Wall presided, while Assistant District Attorney Rick Green and Charlotte lawyer James Payne offered evidence for the state. Marie Jordan served as courtroom clerk.
