

Man Told To Stay Away From Woman Who Accused Him Of Stalking

A Holden Beach man was ordered to stay away from a Shallotte woman for two years last week after he pleaded no contest in Brunswick County District Court to charges of stalking her and making harassing telephone calls.

Jimmy Mintz, 27, was charged with following a woman who lives on Cotton Patch Road "with the intent to cause emotional distress by placing this person in reasonable fear of bodily injury after reasonable warning and request to desist," according to his arrest warrant.

"These acts constituted a pattern of conduct over a period of time evidencing a continuity of purpose," the warrant said.

In another arrest warrant, Mintz was accused of making telephone calls to the same woman "repeatedly for the purpose of harassing and embarrassing" her.

After accepting the plea, Judge Ola Lewis Bray issued a prayer for judgment continued on the condition that Mintz pay court costs and "not threaten, assault, harass, follow, intimidate, call or have any communication with the prosecuting witness whatever." He was also ordered not to violate any laws for two years.
