deficient. If legume hays, such as cow pea, soybean, clover and alfalfa is being fed, this will usually supply indirect in said stock, bonds or other the needed amount of calcium. If securities than as so stated by her. the ration contains as much as 80 per cent of feeds rich in phosphorus such as wheat bran, cottonseed meal and soybean meal, there should be a sufficient amount of this mineral. See that both minerals are in the ration. It will not do any harm to allow the animals free access to a mixture containing one part of salt and four parts of steamed bone meal.

Question: How can I renew an old, run down pasture?

Answer: Cut down all weeds and depth of about two inches. Use a heavy, spike tooth harrow for this work, or it may be done with a disc harrow if the disc is set almost straight so as not to destroy the old od. The fertilizer is applied as soon as the ground is scratched. Reseed the land with selected mixture of seed. If the old pasture is badly in-fested with obnoxious weeds it would be best to break the land and grow some crop before reseeding.

Question: Can I expect heavy egg production from cross bred birds? Answer: Where well bred stock is used on the first cross the crossbred birds will do well in the first egeneration. There is usually an increase in vigor and egg production in the first cross, but further crossing usually has the opposite effects. The birds fall off in production, are more subject to disease, and show a loss in vigor and livability. In the long Pun, it is best to sell all first generation crosses after one year and start again with baby chicks.
