Scenic Toll Road Is Planned Along N. C. Outer Banks

America's longest oceanside highway will soon be built along the upper North Carolina Outer Banks. It will be a toll road and will connect the famous resorts of Nags Head in North Carolina and Virginia Beach.

The new highway will be approximately 57 miles long. Of hard surface, the road will be 22 feet wide. It will pass through one of the last remaining seaside wildernesses of the East coast of America.

Builders of the scenic road which will become a maritime museum of tall dunes, unique villages, picturesque lighthouses and many shipwrecks, plan to start construction work on the highway about September 1. It will be completed by the spring of 1951.

Sponsors of the project are the Carolina Virginia Coastal Highway Association of North Carolina and the Coastal Turnpike Authority of Virginia.

Advertisements for construction bids are now being run and the sealed proposals will be opened at Virginia Beach on August 7.

The new scenic highway is expected to become an alternate route of the great Ocean Highway and will offer north-south bound tourists their first glimpse of the ocean, and 57 miles of it, in the mid-South.

Highway Patrolmen Set Good Example

North Carolina's highway patrolmen are setting a good example for motorists in proper conduct on the highway, according to the June Patrol report, released by the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles.

Added stress has been given the matter of highway courtesy recently since the Governor's Advisory Committee on Highway Safety adopted the following slogan for summer driving: Drive carefully and courteously. It pays all ways!

During June the Patrol rendered 12,531 courtesies to motorists, an average of one per day per man. These courtesies included changing tires for motorists unable to do so themselves, assisting persons whose autos had broken down or run out of gas, contacting travelers away from home and notifying them of emergencies at home, giving first aid to ill or injured motorists, and in general aiding motorists in distress.

Patrol officials pointed out that many courtesies, such as giving directions and information, are so routine that they are not noted by patrolmen on their reports, although such aid is given many times daily.

Deadline Set For Cotton Classing

August 15 has been set as the deadline for applying for the federal cotton classing and market news service, according to D. H. Stencil, cotton marketing specialist with the State College Extension Service.

farmer-membership of 1,203 had filed application for 1950 classing and market news services with the Cotton Branch of the Production and Marketing Administration. Stencil urged cotton improvement groups that have not yet filed to do so as far in advance of the closing date as possible. He explained that several weeks may be required to complete arrangements for the services.

The Smith-Doxey services, he explained, provide for the free classing of cotton for the grower members of cotton improvement groups. Samples are "pulled" as each bale is ginned, and these are sent to the PMA classing office in Raleigh. The grower receives, in turn, a card showing the official grade and staple length of each bale sampled.

In addition, the grower receives regular reports on prevailing cotton prices, so that he is enabled—together with knowledge of the grade of each bale of his cotton—to market it to the best advantage.

Milk Marketing Bulletin Distributed By Station

A new bulletin entitled "Milk Marketing Problems in North Carolina" has just been published by the North Carolina Experiment Station, according to R. W. Cummings, associated director.

The new publication is the report of surveys conducted by W. P. Cotton, agricultural economist, covering the three post-war years, 1947 through 1949. Cotton's studies were concerned with the problems of an uneven supply of milk the year-round period and methods of determining prices to be paid farmers.

One survey showed that under the present pattern of production time of calving is one main reason for high production in the summer and low production in the winter.

Farmers with a high summer production of milk reported that 25 per cent of their cows calved in the fall. Farmers with a uniform pattern of production reported that 42 per cent of their cows calved in the fall. Among the high summer production group 57 per cent of the cows calved from November to April, while in the uniform production group only 36 per cent calved during these months.

In dealing with price plans, Cotton exposes the problems, described several pricing systems and discusses the merit of each. He then suggests how these systems might be adapted to North Carolina conditions.

"Milk Marketing Problems in North Carolina" is the title of the publication, and its number is 370. Copies are available without charge. Persons interested should contact their county agents for a copy or write to the Agricultural Editor, State College, Raleigh.

Aid Provided For Veterans With TB

Veterans of World War II who develop pulmonary tuberculosis within three years from date of discharge from service are granted new presumptions of service-connection for purposes of compensation, provisions and out-patient medical treatment under the provisions of Public Law 573, approved by the President June 23.

The previous law provided a presumptive period one year generally for chronic diseases, with additional presumptions running up to two years for varying stages of tuberculosis.

Presumption of service-connection means that, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, a disease which becomes manifest within the specified period to the extent that it is at least 10 per cent disabling is presumed to have had its origin while the veteran was in service.

World War I veterans were granted a presumptive period for tuberculosis which extended up to January 1, 1925. The purpose of the new law is to provide a comparable presumptive period for World War II veterans.

The Veterans Administration announced it is at present drafting regulations to administer the new law for World War II veterans.
