

WEEKLY LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY

The record-breaking growth of debt in the United States over the last decade and a half, which started with the Federal Government during World War II and was later passed by the private sector of the economy, has reached a new landmark—the $700 billion level.

Preliminary figures indicate that gross public and private debt combined rose by approximately $26 billion in 1954 to an estimated total of $709 billion at the year-end. Based on data compiled by the U. S. Department of Commerce, the 1954 debt figure was $246 billion, or 63 per cent above the 1945 total, and $493 billion or 228 per cent greater than aggregate public and private borrowing at the end of 1940.

Implications Weighed
Both the size of the debt and the rapidity with which it has grown have raised the natural question of prudence, just how much of a debt burden the country can bear without affecting economic stability or the ultimate soundness of the dollar. Such questions are taking on added force these days since, with the return of a competitive economy, encouragement of debt is being used as an economic stimulus by the easing of credit terms for the purchase of all kinds of goods and for housing.

Of course, the growth of debt in the private sector of the economy in recent years has had the basis of the tremendous acquisition of assets by both business and individuals, and has also been accompanied by a high level of personal savings. For example, business expenditures for plant and equipment alone add up to around $213 billion for the nine years from 1946 through 1954. Close to $90 billion of new homes have also been built in this period, along with tens of billions of dollars of other construction. Consumer purchases of automobiles and durable goods have been at record levels. At the same time, personal savings have been maintained at high levels, as indicated by peak purchases of life insurance and the growth of other thrift institutions.

Size of Burden Indicated
The expansion in personal and in business assets and in savings has been far greater than the growth in private debt. Right now the total debt in the economy figures out at around $4,300 for every person in the population, and personal debt alone is currently the equivalent of about $800 per capita.

All major classifications of debt increased in 1954. The biggest gains were in personal debt and in state and local borrowing, but the gross Federal debt rose about $4 billion to a new high of approximately $293 billion, and corporate debt was up nearly $2 billion to an estimated $213 billion. Gross Federal debt includes amounts owed by U. S. agencies and certain categories of debt not subject to the statutory limit.

The largest gain last year was in the classification of individual and non-corporate debt, which increased around $15 billion to an estimated total of $165 billion. The leading factor in this expansion was home mortgages, which were up around $10 billion for the year to a total of approximately $75 billion at the year-end. The home mortgage increase in 1954 was the largest annual expansion on record, and some of it reflects the little-or-no-down-payment home loans made possible by the 1954 housing legislation.

Safety Film Shown At Rotary Meeting

A safety film, "On Your Honor," sponsored by the State Department of Motor Vehicles was the program subject shown by the weekly meeting of the Hertford Rotary Club last Tuesday night. J. R. Futrell was in charge of the program for the meeting.

The film, a timely subject on the program of highway safety, dealt with some of the accident-producing habits being practiced by car drivers these days and proposed a code of honor to be adopted by every motor vehicle operator to promote safer driving conditions on the highways.

How often it is difficult to be wisely charitable—to do good without multiplying the sources of evil. —John Ruskin.
