Many Fish Lost From Storm Effect

One of the oddities resulting from the effects of Hurricane Diane was the death by hundreds of Fercy Winslow, St. fsh in the Perquimans River during the past week-end. Fish were served swimming near the surface of the river apparently gasping for air. Local sportsmen said the area washed oxygen-consuming matter into the river which prevented the fish from obtaining aufficient oxygen to keep alive. A report from Raleigh announced Wildlife officials plan an investigation of the situation.
