

Twiddy Sept. 9th

Marriage of Miss Iris Faye... daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Twiddy of Edenton, to Thomas Stanton Harrell of Edenton, took place Sunday afternoon, September 9th, at the Edenton Baptist Church, officiating, using the double ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms and wedding arrangements of white stork, white gladioli and pompons. Setting of seven-branched candelabra was used in lighting the church.

Miss Peggy Dale of Edenton played the wedding music and accompanied Miss Betty Rowell of Edenton who sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a fitted bodice floor length gown of rose patterned tulle lace over satin with a lovely effect neckline of nylon tulle lace points from the shoulders.

The gown featured an apron effect of the flowing billowy skirt. The train of imported hand made tulle formed a tiara of white tulle. Delicate white tulle veiling matched the bride's face.

She carried a bouquet of white stock, white roses and center with an all white orchid.

Mrs. Fayette Lane, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown of drape tulle styled with fitted torso, bodice and bouffant skirt, wide neck, draped collar accented with a bow in back. Her dress was a matching hat. She carried a cascade of spider chrys-anthemium in light bronze with gold tones. The bridesmaids were Miss Estelle Stallings and Joyce Smith of Edenton. Junior bridesmaids were Ellen Basnight, niece of the bride and Carolyn Harrell, sister of the bridegroom. All wore gowns of serenade blue tulle styled like that of the bride.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Pat Partin and Miss Faye Haste of Edenton. They wore gowns of pastel shades.

Harrell Barrington of Grimesland, N. C., was best man. Ushers were John Beach, cousin of the bridegroom of Hamilton, N. C., Lin Jordan, Melvin Harrell and Harold Bunch of Edenton.

Mrs. Percy Smith was mistress of ceremonies. The mother of the bride wore a beige dress of linen and lace with brown accessories and a corsage of cymbidium orchids.

The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of dior blue with matching accessories and corsage of cymbidium orchids.

The paternal grandmother, Mrs. J. H. Harrell, wore a gray dress with black accessories and corsage of white carnations. The maternal grandmother, Mrs. W. J. Stanton, wore navy blue dress with matching accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Following the wedding the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at the YFW Club. After the reception the couple left for a trip to the mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee.

For traveling the bride wore a sheath dress of mimg brown with matching accessories and the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet. The couple will make their home on Route 2, Edenton.

New Credit Policy Announced For FHA Now In Operation

(Continued from Page One) needed to carry out efficient farming operations on family-type farms. The interest rate remains at 5 per cent. For the fiscal year 1957, $165,000,000 plus a contingency fund of $15,000,000 to be used if necessary, has been appropriated for operating loans.

The increase in the maximum limits of these loans will enable the agency to serve farmers and ranchers in areas where heavy investments in machinery, livestock and farm operating expenses are necessary.

The Democratic Plan—Why Odds Against It—Dulles And Sues—British Burns—

Washington — The Democratic victory plan for 1956 is traditional Democratic strategy as opposed to the Truman strategy of 1948. Adlai Stevenson and aides are trying to win this year's election with three or four bloc or sectional victories. They are as follows:

First, the Democrats are counting on the South, and its approximate 126 electoral votes. Second, they are trying to capture several large key states, such as New York, with its 47 electoral votes.

Thirdly, the Democrats hope to pick off several key farm states in the Midwest, which would bring them an additional number of electoral votes. These, with whatever else the party can get, would add up to more than the 266 needed for election this November.

This strategy is different from that used by the Truman general staff in 1948. In that year the President scorned any compromise with the South, in fact counted on blunt treatment of the South to win for the Democrats votes in the key eastern and northern areas.

Truman lost New York in spite of this but carried enough northern and eastern states to offset the loss of four southern states. In that election the Truman strategy worked.

Stevenson, however, in 1952 carried only eight southern and one border state. He and his supporters think labor, most of whose leaders have now lined up behind the Democratic nominee, added to the unrest and dissatisfaction of a certain number of voters who always become irked with the party in power, will help the Democrats in several big states.

It is probably true that the Democrats are stronger in the South this year but whether the hope for big state victories is justified is another question. And while there is some unrest in farm areas, the hope to capture many electoral votes in the usually Republican Midwest is another unknown.

Farm income has dropped steadily, but farmers in the Midwest have recently seen hog prices move up briskly and the soil bank is helping others. Other meat prices are also up. The next few months might tell the tale on Democratic hopes in the Midwest, although they do not seem destined for another shut-out loss this year.

Standing squarely in the path of victory for the Democrats, beyond a doubt however, is the great popularity of President Eisenhower. Moreover, a check of history shows that most chances of party have lasted longer than four years. In addition, history shows that an administration is seldom turned out when general prosperity is the order of the day and when there is no war in progress.

So, in spite of Democratic victory plans, and some enthusiasm, the Republicans are solid favorites in the coming election, probably enjoying odds right now of about 5 to 3—and those are very heavy odds in presidential election calculations.

The British are quickly burning over the result of Colonel Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal, and American participation in Western relations with Egypt.

The Americans urged Britain to get out of the canal zone. The British finally did. Six weeks later, Egypt seized the canal. Secretary John Foster Dulles flew to London for conferences, but kept saying that he did not believe in the use of force. Without this club to use of force, there was no real pressure on Colonel Nasser. Then, after the commission appointed by the London conference broke off its talks with Egypt, Nasser having refused to internationalize the canal, Secretary Dulles was reported to have said he had never expected Nasser to give in. Meanwhile, the State Department was still opposing the use of force and hoping that further negotiations would straighten out the whole thing.

The British, on the other hand, feel that no amount of negotiation can bring them satisfaction, since they will not be satisfied until and unless the canal is nationalized. And Colonel Nasser is sure to respect nothing but force in the present situation. This the United States is opposed to.

As a result, the British complain, they are handicapped in their effort to recover what is by international treaty, their rights in the canal zone. Without full U. S. backing, the British and French are reduced to negotiations, and few believe that anyone will ever convince Nasser to give up his opposition to internationalizing the canal—by talking to him about it.

The Superintendent reported that $200.00 was the high bid received on the old wooden portion of King Street Elementary School on Saturday, September 16, 1956. The Board voted to refuse this bid and if no higher bid was received within ten days, the legal waiting period, to authorize the contractor to demolish the building.

The Rev. Bishop Tucker appeared before the Board to discuss the possibility of using his church for temporary school quarters during the construction of a new building. The Board authorized payment of $200.00 for use of the church for eight months.

Mr. Darden, Mayor of the Town of Hertford, and Mr. C. E. Johnson, Attorney for the Town, presented two tentative proposals with respect to the Hertford Grammar School property for the Board's consideration. (1) The Town would agree to pay the Board of Education $15,000 and retain the buildings and the land on which they are situated; or (2) they would give the Board of Education a deed for the lunchroom and the land on which it is situated, retaining the remainder of the property. The Board voted to take the matter under consideration when a proposal Eure, to make application for a loan from the State Literary Fund in the amount of $15,000.00, this being the maximum legal amount Perquimans County can borrow. The motion carried unanimously.

Superintendent Biggers reported that $40,000 of the county bond money had been invested in Building and Loan securities bearing three and one-half per cent interest, and $75,000 had been transferred to the State Literary Fund. The Board officially authorized the children of Mr. Dewey Stallings to attend school in Gates County for the year 1956-57.
