Norfolk Preparing For Azalea Week

Distribution of new four-color brochures on Azalea Week in Norfolk and the city's Municipal Gardens was begun last week by the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce.

Azalea Week opens here April 14. Highlight of the week-long program, the International Azalea Court, is scheduled for the afternoon of April 19 in the Municipal Gardens.

Coronation of Queen Azalea V—this year's Queen of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) countries—will be held alongside a new "International Lagoon", according to the folders. Sides of the one-acre lagoon will be planted with azaleas in all colors and sizes.

While the identity of Queen Azalea is a closely-guarded secret until the time of her coronation draws near, the folder betrays at least part of the secret.

The Chamber is returning this year to the traditional plan of drawing the queen from the United States rather than one of the other 14 nations who participate in the festival. Last year, Lady Carey Coke of Norfolk, England, was chosen Queen Azalea IV in keeping with the spirit of Virginia's 380th birthday celebration and the Jamestown Festival.

Outlined in the folder is the entire program for the 1958 Azalea Week, which promises to be the largest ever staged. A concert by the Glee Club of Virginia Military Institute and participation by Midshipmen from the U.

S. Naval Academy, both new this year, will highlight the program. The Chamber, sponsor of the annual Azalea Week observance and the International Azalea Court, is mailing 200,000 of the two brochures to points throughout the country.
