

SENATOR SAM ERVIN SAYS

Washington — The strain of long hours and night sessions during the final days of a Congressional session demonstrates the folly of attempting to legislate on great national issues at such a time.

Why The Hurry? — Mounting pressures from interested groups lead to considerable emotionalism on many issues, thus removing a calm atmosphere conducive to wise action on legislation. As a consequence, it is not easy to get issues of this character in true perspective. There are those who appear to believe that the wisdom of the ages resides in the present and that time-tested verities should be cast aside in favor of radical and reckless action. One may legitimately ask why there is the great rush.

Election Year — One reason pressures build up for action is that 1960 is an election year, a so-called political year. It can be truthfully said that Congress does need prodding by the people on some issues. This helpful advice is welcome and valuable to the legislator.

Example — The minimum wage bill may be cited as an example of the pressure on Congress. Having been before the Senate Committee for nearly two years, the bill was reported in the middle of last week. The Senate was expected to complete action on this far-reaching legislation in only a day or two of debate. This is not adequate time to explore legislation of this character inasmuch as other equally significant bills were piling up for action. I have always felt that very little meritorious legislation has ever languished due to orderly procedure. Much bad legislation has been killed by thorough debate under unhurried circumstances.

TOPPLED BY TORO—The brute strength of a fighting bull is graphically demonstrated in the Madrid, Spain, ring. Picadors' horses are frequently gored despite padding.

State Department Seeks Young Men And Women For Clerks

The art of diplomacy is said to be as old as government itself. In the United States the Department of State was the first executive department of government to be established, and it has grown from a small agency into an intricate organization employing thousands of dedicated Americans.

The Department of State is the headquarters of a vast reporting system which stretches from Washington, D. C., to the far corners of the earth.

From its posts abroad members of the United States Foreign Service report to the State Department on foreign developments which have a bearing on the welfare and security of the American people.

From its "home office" in Washington, D. C., members of the Departmental Service are engaged in programs in direct support of the Department's responsibilities in the field of foreign affairs.

"Young men and women, if you are interested in using your clerical skills in return for the opportunity to take part in the conduct of foreign relations with other nations, the time to do something about it is now," says Aneel N. Taylor, the State Department's Chief of Employment. "The Department is interested in drawing its employees from every one of the 50 States of the Union; from big cities and small towns, from villages and farms."

Persons interested in "home office" employment as stenographers, typists, and clerks must be at least 18 years of age, and must qualify by passing a Civil Service examination, a physical examination and a background investigation. Starting salaries range from $3,255 to $3,755 per year.

Young people interested in "Foreign Service" employment as secretaries, stenographers, communications, mail and pouch clerks must be at least 21; American citizens for at least 5 years; single with no dependents; high school graduates in excellent health; and available to go to any one of 286 Embassies, Legations or Consulates located in 90 countries throughout the world. They must be able to pass performance tests, and meet a minimum work experience requirement of 3 years. College training may be substituted for a maximum of 18 months of experience. Starting salaries range from $3,730 to $4,180 plus travel expenses and housing allowances.

Travel, foreign lands, good pay and opportunity are, of course, important to individuals in considering overseas employment, but the Department is most interested in those candidates who have the concept of service to their country uppermost in mind.

Leaf hoppers and trips are also present in large numbers, so an insecticide is needed to control these. It is also time to apply landplaster on peanuts as peanuts are blooming. The rate of landplaster people apply varies in most cases, but if you are using less than 500 to 600 pounds per acre you should consider stepping up the amount as peanuts have a great need for landplaster when they begin to peg.

A little extra care of peanuts at the present time may mean a great deal more money this fall in both grade and yield, states R. M. Thompson, county agricultural agent.

FARM NEWS

By R. M. THOMPSON, County Agent

In many cases soybeans and peanuts are showing manganese deficiency. This is a problem that we have had for several years due to the use of excess lime and causes a yellowing of the soybeans and peanuts. This situation can be remedied rather easily by the use of manganese sprayed directly on the foliage at the rate of five pounds of material per acre. It can also be dusted on at the rate of 15 pounds per acre. The use of this material where needed has increased the yield of soybeans enormously in many cases and if you have spots in your soybeans or peanuts that are showing a deficiency of this material it will really pay to spray or dust.

Many people have already applied the second application of copper sulfur plus an insecticide on their peanuts. If you are one of those that has not dusted, you should do so at the earliest possible opportunity, because pe-

Cotton—the South's symbol of better living for many generations—continues to play a major role in North Carolina's economy. Ranking third in total crop value, our cotton is produced mainly on small, family-owned farms of 15 acres or less. Yet its importance to our economic well-being may be measured by the fact that more North Carolinians directly or indirectly depend on cotton for their living than on any other product.

Other evidence of the better living concept to be found in North Carolina is the enlightened approach to the "legal control" system for the sale of beer and ale that has long since proven its merits in the best interests of temperance and moderation.
