Dr. H. C. King, Washington, D. C., Program Appraiser of the Animal Disease Eradication Division of United States Department of Agriculture; Dr. N. B. Tyler, Raleigh Inspector in charge of the program in North Carolina, and Dr. George S. Bradshaw, Winston, District Supervisor observed animal disease control work in the area Thursday. This team of disease control veterinarians visited the State Diagnostic Laboratory at Edenton and talked with Dr. Cliff Pittman who is in charge of the project. A half day was spent observing the field program of Dr. H. C. Jackson, USDA Veterinarian, Edenton, as he did routine Bangs tests near Woodville in Perquimans County. During the official observation the farms of Dennis Cartwright, Odell Cartwright, Ralph Harrell and Ralph Layden were visited.

Dr. King said that he makes routine visits to all the states. He found great contrast between the snow-covered hills of Vermont, three weeks ago, and the rain soaked soil of the Tidewater region this week. His program is arranged so that he attempts to work the northern states in summer and the southern states during winter months. He said that every section has a different problem. Recently he rode with a Texas Veterinarian and they found it necessary to open 26 gates, one way, to get to the ranch.

In commenting on the visit,

Dr. Jackson said that he has always found those in a supervisory position most understanding. It is the department's rule to advance men from the field to more responsible positions. He said these people have experienced all the field problems from a car that hesitates to start on a damp morning to a milk cow that makes up her mind that she just don't intend to be tested.

Winfall Youth Hurt In Accident

A Norfolk policeman and his son, both of whom had first aid training, are credited with saving the life of Grover Hollowell, 19, whose jugular vein was cut Sunday by a can he was attempting to blast into the air as a firecracker.

Hollowell's brother, Joey, Jr., said his uncle, Lt. R. L. Kowalski, of the Norfolk Police Division, and his son Bobby, 19, were attending an annual family reunion where the accident happened and slowed the flow of blood until Dr. T. P. Brinn could arrive.

Hollowell was taken to the Albemarle Hospital in Elizabeth City by ambulance, accompanied by Brinn, and was reported in fairly good condition Tuesday.

His brother said Grover had placed a cherry bomb under a small tomato paste can. Instead of shooting up, the can split and the jagged edge slashed across the boy's throat although he was standing several yards away.

The accident occurred Sunday about 3 P. M. The Hollowell boys are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hollowell, Sr., of Winfall. Kowalski had first aid training in line with his police duties. His son had learned his as a Boy Scout.
