

End Measles Sunday Is Slated January 29 At Health Department

A campaign against measles will be held on Sunday, January 29. The Medical Society of Perquimans and Chowan Counties are sponsoring the clinic and making it available. Dr. T. P. Brinn of Hertford is chairman in Perquimans County.

In Perquimans all children one to 12 years who have not had measles are urged to attend the Sunday clinic and receive the immunization shot, which will be given by jet injector guns, being used in Perquimans County for the first time. The immunization is almost painless, according to Dr. Isa Grant.

According to Dr. Grant, the clinic will be held on Sunday, January 29, from 3:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon until 5:30 at the Health Department. She urges all to take their children from one to 12 to this clinic which is the Medical Society doctors' idea to help avoid the usual spring epidemic which we usually have of 'red measles.' Red measles, according to Dr. Grant, affects the eyes, causes deafness and encephalitis.

Local Citizens Attend Session

The North Carolina Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts held its 24th annual meeting at the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh January 9-11. Among the more than 300 farmers and businessmen who serve as supervisors of the 88 soil and water conservation districts that cover the state and soil conservation service personnel were the following delegates and their wives from Perquimans County: Mr. and Mrs. George G. Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Copeland and Mr. and Mrs. F. A. McGoggin.

This annual meeting provided an opportunity for supervisors throughout North Carolina to discuss and take action on matters concerning conservation and development of the state's soil, water and other natural resources. Progress to date in this effort was discussed and action taken to establish the association's major objectives for the forthcoming year.

James T. Moss of Youngsville, president of the association, presided at the meeting. Speakers appearing on the program were Hon. Robert W. Scott, lieutenant governor of North Carolina; Dr. George Hyatt, Jr., director of North Carolina Extension Services; Ralph C. Winkworth, state forester; Dr. A. W. Cooper from the National Tillage Laboratory, Auburn University, Auburn, Ala.; J. P. Kuykendall, state conservationist, State Conservation Service, and Gordon Zibberman, executive director, National Association of Conservation Districts, Washington, D. C.

Gov. Dan K. Moore, who spoke at the association's banquet session, referred briefly to the 1967 General Assembly which convenes on February 8 and predicted that the lawmakers will reflect a spirit of increasing concern for conservation of natural resources. He added "our efforts to maintain a healthful, attractive environment, with open spaces, clean waters, and adequate recreation grounds, must be planned and developed with greater care. Fortunately," Governor Moore said, "we are still at a stage of development where we have time to plan wisely and to take positive action."

"Despite an apparent comfortable margin," Mr. Winkworth, state forester, said in addressing the association, "the ratio of tree growth over drain in North Carolina is in jeopardy now for the first time in many years." He stated that North Carolina is still producing trees perhaps a little faster than we're using them while losing them to fire, insects and diseases. But demand is rising rapidly because of expansion in the wood-using industries and the increase in production is not keeping pace.

Mr. Winkworth concluded, "North Carolina is a big state in forestry. Much of it is now a believer."

Rep. Not Up In Air

Culpepper Likes Planes

Although State Motor Vehicles Commissioner A. Pils-ton Godwin, Jr., of Gates, hasn't shown his hand, there are strong overtones that he will ask the 1967 General Assembly to repeal a law which prohibits the use of planes to enforce traffic laws.

Patrol Flight Sgt. Dan Williams was in Edenton last Thursday to give Rep. W. T. Culpepper, Jr., of Elizabeth City, a demonstration of the patrol's aerial capabilities at traffic safety.

This was one of a series of demonstration flights arranged by Commissioner Godwin prior to the opening of the General Assembly next month.

Rep. Culpepper tactfully shunned the invitation to take a flight in one of the two patrol aircraft. He made his manners to Sgt. Williams and climbed into a patrol cruiser "piloted" by Trooper Wayne Rawls of Edenton.

The representative said later he was extremely impressed with the demonstration. He said he instructed the trooper to drive at 59 miles per hour and when the speed check came back from the plane, flying at 1,200 feet, it was 59.1 miles per hour.

Rep. Culpepper said he saw no reason why planes would not be effective in enforcement of the traffic laws. "Goodness knows, we must have more patrolmen or use something like this," he said, pointing to the aircraft.

In the demonstration the plane flies over critical traffic areas while a patrol flight observer demonstrates to the lawmakers techniques used in traffic control and the manner in which moving traffic violations can be observed from the air.

Sgt. Williams, carrying a reporter and Trooper R. A. Allen instead of the law-maker, explained that, on traffic control missions, the plane flies at between 800 and 1,200 feet, weather permitting. The plane hovers

Cancer Crusade Was Successful

The 1966 Cancer Crusade was a very successful event. The goal was set at $1,000.00 and to date a total of $1,275.34 has been collected, with a few more reports to be turned in.

"Let us not stop now that we have attained our goal," stated Mrs. D. M. Jackson, Crusade chairman. "True, the money is a very important factor in promoting cancer research, as well as providing assistance for cancer patients on the local level, but we must continue a year-round educational program, and we can only do that with your help."

We have film strips and other material on cancer available to the public, and we urge the various organizations in the county to schedule at least one program on cancer this year.

My special thanks to my publicity chairman, Mrs. Ben Thach, who has done such an excellent job. Her many fine news releases on cancer education and the Crusade during the past four months have been outstanding and inspiring to all who read them.

The success of the Crusade was due to the untiring efforts of the volunteers who gave their time freely and uncomplainingly to this worthy cause. But all volunteers should feel rewarded for they have helped people and they have spread hope.

I wish I could thank each.

MONEY FOUND

There is plenty of money here in our county, so it seems. This past week J. Kelly White, tax collector, reported to this paper that someone found some money on the street and took it to the tax office. So if you have had the misfortune to lose some money, you can go to the tax collector's office on the second floor at the Court House here, describe the money or denomination, the amount, and Mr. White will be very happy to turn it over to the one who lost it.

Preliminary For Low-Rent Structures Approved For County

Jaycees Buy Project Stock

The Hertford Junior Chamber of Commerce again shows their dedication to the continued growth of Perquimans County and their faith in the future of the area by purchasing 50 shares amounting to $500 of stock in the Perquimans County Industrial Development Corporation.

The Jaycees have done an excellent job of promoting Northeastern Carolina, having recently sponsored a "Junior Miss Contest" in Hertford for this district. The winner of the contest, Miss Linda Hand of Gatesville, went on to the state finals in Charlotte, where she was the third runner-up for the title of North Carolina Junior Miss.

On the night the Jaycees voted to purchase the stock in the Perquimans Industrial Development Corporation the Elizabeth City Jaycees were present and they were so impressed with the Hertford group's interest, they have joined in the support of the local unit's efforts toward the future by the purchase of one share of stock in the Perquimans County Industrial Development Corporation and in this gesture demonstrate the unity of the Albemarle area in the growth of the industrial potential of the area.

Historical Society History

The Perquimans County Historical Society will hold its regular January quarterly meeting Monday night, January 23, at 8 o'clock in the Perquimans County Library.

George Attix, manager of the Elizabeth City Chamber of Commerce, will introduce the guest speaker, Miss Susan Stitt, new curator of the Museum of the Albemarle.

Members of the society are urged to attend as well as the general public. The following is a Perquimans County legend contributed for this column by the Perquimans Historical Society. The Perquimans County Historical Society is interested not only in collecting history about our county but legends as well. Did you ever hear the legend about the circus that almost did not get to perform in Hertford?

During the time when the old floating bridge, supported on whiskey barrels, was in operation across the "Narrows," a circus was to appear in Hertford. With the limited entertainment available then, one can imagine with what eagerness the arrival of the circus was anticipated.

Finally the circus day arrived. Imagine the crowd of curious spectators on the river bank to watch the circus come to town. Difficulty developed, however, when the elephants were to cross the bridge. The great weight of the elephants caused much unsteadiness to the floating bridge. No matter how hard the circus workmen tried, the elephants flatly refused to cross the bridge. The difficulty was finally overcome so Hertford did have the circus performance. How did they get the elephants to Hertford? The elephants swam across the "Narrows."

Reed Returns From Vietnam

Edwin Corp Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Reed of Charleston, S. C., and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Corp Reed of Hertford, an Army officer, has returned to this country from Vietnam.

Reed, a 1964 graduate of The Citadel, was a dean's list student at the Military School and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant upon graduation. He served 14 months in Vietnam and it was while there he was promoted to First Lieutenant.

Reed says Vietnam is unbelievably beautiful, "much more beautiful than the average American thinks that it is. It reminds me a great deal of Hawaii where the mountains come down to the sea."

The people he said, are mainly of one class. There is no distinct caste system similar to that found in India.

"Most of the people farm for a living. Many have a tract of land not much larger than the lot on which my home is built, and from this space of ground, they manage to raise enough rice to last them more than a year.

The majority of the Vietnamese people are in sympathy with the United States."
