They had also enclosed the lady's address who found and turned the bag over to the police department.

Need Is Here For Manganese

"There is a noticeable need for manganese on many of the fields in Perquimans County this year," states R. M. Thompson, County Extension Chairman.

Part of this trouble is due to the extensive dry weather in which manganese deficiency shows up much more readily than it does when we have favorable growing conditions. We are suggesting that where you have corn, soybeans or peanuts showing a manganese deficiency, you apply manganese by spray which will make it available quicker than if it is put out as dry material. These spots are noticeable due to the yellowing of the leaf with green midribs standing out and in most cases it is very easily identified.

According to Mr. Thompson, "Where these materials have been used, yields have been increased as high as 28 bushels of soybeans to the acre. We also would like to encourage you to begin dusting your peanuts for insect control. The systemic material that was applied at planting has played out in most fields and with the cool nights that we have been having, the insect population has built up rapidly and has caused considerable damage in the peanut field. Also, it is our normal time to begin this insecticide program and we hope that you will make it as favorable as possible to produce the highest yields in all of our commodities, in order to get us the most money," further states Mr. Thompson.
