April 5-11 Is National FHA Week

March 20, the Perquimans County High School Future Homemakers of America Chapter met in the high school auditorium. The devotion was given by Kathy Keel and Peggy Griffen. The committee chosen for selecting the FHA'er of the month is proud to present this honor to Nancy Riddick, historian for the club.

Anita Smith, Linda Harrell, Lydia Stallings and Janice Layden, have been selected to head the project committee, which plans to plant flowers in the sign in front of the building.

April 5-11 will mark National FHA week. Any member wishing to attend the national FHA convention in Raleigh on April 4, is asked to sign up in the Home Economics room. President Margaret Mansfield expressed her wish to observe National FHA week. A committee was selected to plan a bulletin board for the occasion. Those on the committee are Kathy Keel, Darlene Meads, Willie Faye Dail, and Nancy Davenport.

The highlight for the meeting was the skit entitled "Right or Wrong Etiquette For the Dance." This skit presented by fellow members was enjoyed by all.

Perquimans Pupils To Participate In Land Judging Meet

Perquimans County High School will be represented at the 16th Annual North Carolina Future Farmers of America Land Judging Meet on Saturday, April 11, at Chatham Central High School in Goldston.

Fifty teams of four members each will be competing for a first place team to represent the state at the International Land, Pasture, and Range Judging Meet in Oklahoma City. The winning team and its instructor will receive a plaque and $750 for expenses at the national contest. The second place team will receive $100 for expenses to a state FFA camp this summer. Both first and second place teams will be awarded chapter plaques.

Team members representing the local chapter include: Julian Baker, Edmond White, Donald Hurdle, C. L. Godfrey.

Local Talent Seen In "Paul Green's Carolina"

The College of the Albemarle Satyrs will present "Paul Green's Carolina" at the Perquimans High School in Hertford on Friday, April 17 at 8 p.m. Three Perquimans residents are among those taking part in this attraction which is sponsored by the Perquimans County Arts Council.

Kim Rose, graduate of Perquimans High will play one of the folk guitars which provided soft background music to set the mood for the readings, both sad and humorous, which show Paul Green as a writer of short stories dealing with everyday, commonplace happenings. Elton Hollowell, graduate of Perquimans Union is also one of the performers. and Lee Fuller, sixth grade teacher at Perquimans Union, has acted as a consultant to Lucy Vaughn who adapted and directed the stories to be presented by the Satyrs.

Lucy Vaughn is assistant professor of English at the College of the Albemarle and brings to it a wealth of experience and training. She was graduated from the University of Houston, cum laude, as a drama major, and later received the Master of Arts degree from Kent State University. Mrs. Vaughn is a singer and actress as well as a leaching she is able, therefore, to understand the aims and aspirations of these young people whom she directs in theatrical productions.

Paul Green is best known in this area for his symphonic drama "The Lost Colony" but he also has to his credit "The Common Glory" at Williamsburg, "The Stephen Foster Story" at Bardotown, Kentucky, "Cross and Sword" at St. Augustine, Florida, and "Texas" at Canyon, Texas. He well deserves the title of "Father of the Symphonic Drama" in which he has achieved a union of all the performing arts. His work has spread over nearly a half century, and he has written many beautiful and moving works, many reminiscent of his boyhood days on a tobacco and cotton farm in Harnett County. His outstanding talents were recognized by the award of the Pulitzer Prize for his full-length play, "In Abraham's Bosom."

The first event in the Perquimans County Arts Council's presentation of the arts was an exhibit of paintings by Jaquelin Jenkins of Elizabeth City, displayed at the Perquimans County Library.

Following that the Council assisted the Perquimans High School in getting a performance of Shakespeare's "As You Like It".

The readings by the Satyrs of "Paul Green's Carolina" will be the third in the series and this will be followed by other events including an arts and crafts show on June 12 and 13.

Wood Finishing Meeting In County Office Bldg. Apr. 13

What causes wood deterioration in houses? The answer to this question and many others will be given by Stephen Hanover, North Carolina State University Wood Products Specialist from Raleigh. You are invited to a Wood and Wood Finishes Meeting on April 13, 1970, 7:30 p.m. at the County Office Building in Hertford. Mr. Hanover will discuss, (1) wood products specifications including plywood, particle-board, lumber and treated products, (2) wood deterioration in houses caused by fungi, their identification and control and the finishing of interior woodworks.

He will hold a workshop on April 14, at 9:00 a.m. on the finishing of interior woods. Each participant will have an opportunity to mix and match stains and try out a variety of finishes.

If you have questions about this very informative class, please call Ila Grey White, Home Economics Extension Agent, at the County Office Building. She says "41% of all homes in Perquimans County are not sound, 22% are deteriorating and 19% are dilapidated. It is time we had a look at some of the reasons why homes deteriorate."

Stafford Appointed Construction Inspector For FHA

Jacob A. Stafford of Route #5, Elizabeth City, has been appointed as a Construction Inspector for the Farmers Home Administration with headquarters at Hertford, North Carolina according to an announcement made by James T. Johnson, State FHA Director.

Mr. Johnson stated that "Construction Inspector positions have recently been authorized to assist with the agency's accelerated Rural Housing Program whereby loans are made for the construction, purchase or repair of homes in rural areas. Construction Inspectors are being employed to make inspections during construction, assist families in planning for new homes, repairing existing homes, advise borrowers on construction problems, recommend construction changes and maintain a close liaison with builders and contractors in the area."

Mr. Stafford will perform inspection work in Perquimans, Chowan, Pasquotank, Camden, Currituck, Hertford and Gates Counties.

16th Annual FFA Land Judging

The 16th Annual North Carolina FFA Land Judging Meet will be held this weekend, April 11th, at the Chatham Central High School, Goldston, N. C., near Sanford.

Mr. Joe L. Tunnell and his first place team in the Albemarle District, composed of Julian Baker, Edmond White, C. L. Godfrey and Donald Hurdle will leave Friday and return on Saturday to compete in the state contest.

Floyd Mathews, Chairman of the Perquimans Soil and Water Conservation District Supervisors, presented a check of $50 to the team on Tuesday of this week during class at the Perquimans County High School where these boys are members of the junior class.

Mr. Mathews states this contribution was made possible through the loyal support of local businesses in their purchase of Affiliate Memberships in Soil & Water Conservation, Perquimans County. "We know these FFA students will represent their school and district well," continue Mr. Mathews.
