In Fashion

The new length for skirts, which seems to be catching on in some areas, is the "Gibson" look, influenced by the Gibson Girl pictures that were so popular in the early nineteen hundreds. The skirt hems are several inches above the ankle.

Another popular length is just about the top of the knee. Boots are worn with practically everything. Heavy clothes call for heavy shoes or boots.

Students Work And Attend School WEEKLY REVENUE Total Allocation For County 469

Like Grandpa and Dad many of today's students must work to go to school. But assistance is being offered these students in an on-the-job training program enacted by the U.S. Congress in the Vocational Education Amendments of 1968. The Amendments provide financial assistance through part-time employment to students in need of earnings to begin or continue vocational programs.

According to Dr. Charles Law, Director of the Division of Occupational Education with the State education agency, the Vocational Education Amendments emphasize three main aspects of vocational programs. One aspect of the Amendments provides funds for expanding on-the-job training related to a student's course of study. Money is also appropriated for developing new programs of cooperative education, 17 of which began this year in North Carolina. A third emphasis, the work-study program, is being implemented in all 152 school systems in the State, said Law.

Funds under the work-study aspect of the program are used to compensate students employed and to develop and administer the program. A student may work a maximum of 15 hours per week while enrolled in a vocational program, but employment is limited to public, non-profit establishments under this part of the program, added Law.

Allotment of funds to local school systems for the work-study program is based on the percentage of the 15-21-year-old population, the number of dropouts, the rate of unemployment, and the median income of the area. Each local unit must match 20 per cent of the funds to the federal government's 80 per cent. The total allocation for Perquimans County for 1970-71 is $469 as compared to the State total of $93,633, a minimum of the total cost of the program.

Programs such as work-study promoting occupational training are essential in cutting down the dropout rate, according to State School Superintendent Craig Phillips. By teaching a student about the working world and letting him participate while in school, students who might otherwise become bored with school will remain motivated.

INTELLIGENCE CONTROL

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has issued a policy statement to go into effect no later than Feb. 1 removing the vast Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) from the Joint of Staff and putting it directly under the secretary of defense.
