The it's what makes saucers exciting — no telling where you'll land! No steering... no brakes... no telling which way you'll turn or how fast you'll go. Swirling may be exciting on a snow-laden hill. It's not nothing else again on the rugged slopes of life. So many parents who want the very best for their youngsters are living with the gnawing fear of how a child's future may unfold. The Church offers sound answers to our fear. Religious training provides steering in a human life. Moral principles become the necessary brakes. And for the continuing uphill climb which beckons and challenges youthful souls, faith unlocks the resources of spiritual power.

LOVE IS...
International Sunday School Lesson for January 2, 1971
LESSON TEXT: Luke 6

The greatest teacher of love that man has ever known (or ever will know) was Jesus Christ. In this lesson the eloquence of Luke is therefore directed to adding to our understanding of our Lord's teachings on love of our fellowmen, and to encouraging us to express this love towards others in a manner which will be wholly acceptable to God.

Perhaps the best commentary on Christ's words is His own exemplary life. Concern and forgiveness were the cornerstones of a life devoted exclusively to service to mankind. Christ taught that true brotherly love is based on advantages and opportunities unselfishly rendered to others... even at the point of great personal sacrifice on the part of the giver, without thought of personal gains.

It cannot, however, be said that such acts will go unrewarded, for God both praises and approves such "acts of the spirit" and His approval is, in itself, the most precious reward... one upon which no earthly value can be set!

Definitions of love vary, but Jesus never proclaimed any difference between the love of man for man and the love of man for God. Man was created in God's own image; it therefore follows that how we treat our fellow men will reflect our treatment of God.

In the Sermon on the Mount the chosen twelve were taught basics of true discipleship. They were to practice the perfect expression of love for one another and all their brethren, as personified in Christ. There was to be no limit to the outpourings of their hearts, as there was no limit to the Father's loving concern for wayward and sinning mankind. The forgiveness which He extended in the Person of His beloved Son should bear the fruit of forgiveness within ourselves towards those who sin against us. And this love and forgiveness should be tendered even though others do not respond to it. This is the test of a true Christian spirit.

The power of love in a world that is fraught with violence must never be under-rated, for in the free expression of Christian love lies the hope of the world. Love is the basic standard for discipleship; as we have received at the hands of our Father, so are we called upon to give. As we follow (or do not follow) that which was preached on the Mount, so do we reveal our relationship to Christ. And as we practice these tenets of our faith, so the world can see Him in us.

However, spiritual regeneration on a personal level is necessary before we can practice a concept of love towards the undeserving, or extend our pardon towards those who are guilty of sinning against us. To be capable of such love entails a continuing striving, a never-remitting policing of our own emotions as we are to pattern our lives upon Christ's glowing example. May God grant us the grace to accomplish this!
