A LOOK BACKWARD

By Virginia White Transeau
Feb. 1935

TWO LOCAL MEN LOSE LIVES BY DROWNING: A packing case bearing the name of J. C. Blanchard & Co., seen floating on the waters of the Chowan River on Friday night, was the first clue to the identity of Jesse J. Land and Elmer Symons, both of Hertford, shortly after the truck in which they were riding, with Mr. Symons at the wheel, crashed through the rail of the bridge near the toll house on Friday night, hurling both men to their death, in the water below. Jesse J. Land and Elmer Symons, were employed by J. H. Towe, who operates a truck line, left Hertford shortly after 9 o'clock on Friday night carrying a load of furniture belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Harris former residents enroute to Winston-Salem.

had given her the five dollars she asked for. She had become convinced that the automobile wouldn't travel through mud and there are no sidewalks all the way to Nags Head. But Mollie was going on the bus if Daddy hadn't refused to furnish the wherewithal.

NOTE
With a lump in my throat and an aching heart, I want to thank the many people who have sent me letters and notes following inserting in my column 'A Look Backward' in your Perquimans Weekly 'Phyllis Transeau, my German Schmauser's death. I have received so many cards and letters, it is impossible to answer each one personally. All of you who have been so kind has etched your name in my heart. I once heard, that anyone that didn't like dogs-beware. It really seems to ring true. Whoever said, that a dog is man's best friend — should have said, "man-womans and child's best friend. It is also gratifying to know that so many are reading my column 'A Look Backward', because thru this column is the only way that I announced Phyllis's death.

PRISONERS IN JAIL DRINK PART OF EVIDENCE: There were 70 gallons of liquor in the jail. It was found at a still raided by Sheriff J. Emmett Winslow and his deputies some months ago and was kept locked in one of the small cells of the jail, to be used as evidence. It isn't there now, three or four gallons are missing. Sheriff Winslow says he believes that it didn't disappear last week when the prisoners went on a big spree and raised a disturbance in jail, resulting in the doctor being called in the middle of the night to a man who had either been hit on the head with a stick or who had fallen down stairs. The door of the cell used as a liquor cache had a small grating, through which a jug could be pulled close to the door by means of a broom. A piece of rubber hose kept concealed in the jail was used to syphon the liquor from the jug into a small container.

HIT OR MISS: One more budding romance, blighted! Mollie and Carlton are both five years old. Mollie announced to her family on Thursday that she and Carlton had decided they would go to Nags Head on their honeymoon. It was like a bolt out of the blue sky. Nothing has yet been said about any kind of a ceremony. The trip was to be made, it seems, in the automobile which Santa Claus brought Carlton. Everything was nicely planned and pretty well carried out. Mollie packed her bag completely, even to finger nail polish. She said only her sun suit would be necessary in the way of dresses, evidently expecting to find the same conditions she left at Nags Head when she left last summer. The couple were to leave, according to Mollie, at 4 o'clock next morning. Mollie woke, at the appointed time and insisted that she really was leaving. But alas and alas! Carlton didn't show up. He was fast asleep at 4 o'clock in the morning. Now Mollie explains that they would have gone anyhow, if Daddy

TV Commentary

By John Sully

IT HAS BEEN reported that the television commercial is the most potent communications vehicle in this country today and 90 per cent of all TV commercials contain 55-words and run 30 seconds.

JACK WEBB, the grandpa of police, crime, and detective productions, has another TV series in the creative mill. The name of this one is "Escape." Look for it in February. This dramatic series is unique in that there will be no regular cast members. Guest stars will appear portraying people who find themselves in desperate situations.

THE WEEKEND NUN starring Joanna Pettet as Sister Mary Damian was a very effective piece of work, exploring interesting questions that face religion today as well as the feelings of the young protagonist. TV could use more of the same. The script was based on the true story of a Louisiana nun.

ABC, which treats the sports-minded to many good programs, has an unusual sports special brewing for February 25.
