THE CHURCH AND THE CIVIL AUTHORITIES

Each child of God has obligations to the human government under which he lives. He should abide by the laws of his city, county, state, and nation, and be submissive to said governmental agency unless it should require him to disobey God or to do wrong. The limitation of the Christian's responsibility to be subject to the earthly powers begins only when such subjection contravenes the plain teachings of the Word of God. Always a Christian must obey God in preference to obeying man.

One must obey the law not simply to escape the consequences of wrong doing, but for the sake of his own conscience which tells him to do right. Moreover, he owes it to his fellowmen, over whom he has influence, to be a law-abiding citizen. It is impossible to disobey God without incurring His displeasure and receiving the due reward for doing so, just as certainly as rebellion against the government and violation of the law cannot go unpunished.

It is incumbent upon the Christian that he pay taxes. The payment of taxes is both an acknowledgement of subjection to the government and the discharge of an obligation to pay for numerous services rendered. While we live in the heavenlies spiritually, we are not to evade our earthly responsibilities. Christians should be better citizens than those who do not claim to be followers of Christ. It is their duty to meet their obligations to all others. For this reason, God admonishes them to promote that which is right and do that which is good on every level and in every area of life.

We do not believe that, in verse eight, Paul meant to brand all credit-buying as un-Christian, for he himself ran a "charge account" with Philemon. Instead of teaching that one should never be in debt, he was saying, "Do not leave a debt unpaid."

In other words, "Do not be like the man who was called 'a human dynamo' because everything he was wearing was charged." A debtor must never defraud his creditor.

Paul enumerated the last five of the Ten Commandments, which have to do with our relationship to others. The commandment which says, "Thou shalt not commit adultery," strikes at an evil which is growing with frightful rapidity in these days. God's prohibition of adultery is still applicable. The commandment, "Thou shalt not kill," forbids the taking of the life of a human being, whether it be for revenge or some other evil motive. In the command, "Thou shalt not steal," God forbids the taking of that which rightfully belongs to another, whether it be God or man. Because bearing false witness in public and in private is an abomination in the sight of God, we have the plain prohibition,

Covered Dish At New Hope

The New Hope United Methodist Church will celebrate the Fourth of July with an old fashioned church picnic.

The worship service will begin at 9:55 a.m. followed by Sunday school. Dinner on the grounds will be a covered dish lunch starting about 12:15 p.m.

There will be games and contests and a program of singing.

The public is invited to bring a dish to pass and join in the celebration at New Hope United Methodist Church on Sunday, July 4.

"Thou shalt not bear false witness." Whereas the four preceding commandments pertain to words and deeds, the fifth one, "Thou shalt not covet," regulates the thoughts, desires, and longings. Even though this sin of covetousness may not be visible to others, it is strictly forbidden.

These five commandments can be summarized easily in the words quoted by our Lord, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." This debt of love, which we owe to all men, is a continuing matter. If we love others as we should, we shall certainly have due respect for both their persons and their possessions. Any person who truly loves his neighbor will not treat him wrongfully, but he will express his love for him in active goodwill.

Women's Day Speaker

Women's Day will be observed at the Oak Hill A.M.E. Zion Church, Sunday, June 27 at 1 p.m.

The speaker is Mrs. Cleo Z. Felton a former member of Oak Hill A.M.E. Zion Church and native of Perquimans County. She received her B.S. degree from Elizabeth City State College and is now retired after teaching in the County for 43 years. She taught at the King St. Elementary School for 23 years. A member of St. Paul A.M.E. Church, Mrs. Felton is president of the Deaconess Board, Supt. and teacher of Sunday School. Mrs. Felton is the mother of two children and the widow of the late James Felton.
