MRS. THOMAS WILLIAM STEINBERG

Steinberg-Chappell exchange vows

Peggy Renee Chappell and Thomas William Steinberg were married Saturday, Aug. 5 at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Chapel Hill, N.C. by Pastor Robert Walker. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Chappell of Chapel Hill. She is also the granddaughter of Mrs. Ruth B. Chappell of Woodland St., Hertford. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. David Steinberg of Seabrook, Md. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organza trimmed with Alencon lace. The bodice, long fitted sleeves, and chapel length train were trimmed in lace and seed pearls which also outlined the keyhole neckline. Her fingertip veil attached to a camelot cap and was trimmed with matching lace. She carried a bouquet of wildflowers including daisies, cornflowers, baby's breath, and miniature pink carnations. Mrs. Laure Taylor of Raleigh, N.C. served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Susan Steinberg, sister of the groom; Miss Cary Wright and Miss Heather Haskins. John Reed of Fredrick, Md. served as best man. Ushers were Bruce Chappell Jr., brother of the bride; Ken Edahl, and Jim Steinberg, brother of the groom. Kristopher Kyle, nephew of the groom, was ring-bearer. The couple is residing in Chapel Hill, N.C. The bride will graduate in December from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The groom is a 1977 graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill and is employed as a scientist with Northrop at the Research Triangle Park.

A READY WITNESS
 Acts 26:1-3, 19-29
 Face to face with Paul, Agrippa granted the Apostle permission to speak for himself, whereupon he seized the opportunity to bear his witness for Christ by proclaiming the gospel. How fortunate the king was in having the opportunity to learn of Christ from the world's greatest preacher. At the same time, his unusual opportunity entailed tremendous responsibility.

Acts 26:1-3
 As a salute to the Roman emperor Paul "stretched forth his hand" and began to speak in his own defense. In a dignified and courteous manner Paul began his speech by complimenting Agrippa upon his remarkable knowledge of the Jews. Paul expressed his great delight at the opportunity to speaking to one who was so fully acquainted with the Jews — their history, manner of life, customs, convictions, controversies, and hopes. He was grateful for the privilege of telling his story to one who possessed expert knowledge of Jewish history and religion. One so well qualified would understand his terms and references. It was only natural, therefore, that Paul expected Agrippa to hear him with an understanding and sympathetic interest. With his message Paul made a very favorable impression on Agrippa, but the result was disappointing to the Apostle because Agrippa continued in his rejection of the Saviour Whom he lovingly proclaimed to him.

Acts 26:19-29
 Paul's defense was in the form of a review of his remarkable experience of salvation. He related how he had received a clear vision of the risen and glorified Christ, which caused him to see himself as a lost sinner and his strength to leave him. He collapsed and many of his religious views were swept away. He then became a new creature in Christ, and consequently had a new conception of the meaning of life. After telling how the new light and life came into his soul, Paul made the glorious claim that he "was not disobedient to the heavenly vision." The remainder of his life was characterized by faithful obedience to the vision which he received.

As soon as he was prepared to receive it, a great commission awaited Paul. Christ appointed him as a minister and a witness. Thereafter he had an experience to relate and people needed to hear it. Henceforth Paul regarded himself as a debtor to all because of what he had experienced and possessed. He understood full well that the Lord had a place where He wanted him to be and a work in which He wanted him to be engaged. Paul knew that if he went elsewhere and did something else he would miss God's best, and he certainly did not wish to do that.

Due to the fact that "the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him," what Paul said was nonsense to Festus. So, he declared that Paul's statements were nothing more than the babblings of a man who was beside himself. To this unkind criticism, and accusation that he had gone crazy, Paul replied very courteously, cue to the enabling grace of God. With admirable self-control and fearless courage Paul made a complete disavowal of insanity.

Turning dramatically and directly to Agrippa, and addressing him personally, Paul asked, "Believest thou the prophets?" Before Agrippa had time to reply, Paul answered for him, "I know that thou believest." Trembling under deep and pungent conviction, which was wrought by the Holy Spirit, Agrippa exclaimed, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian."
