Governor selects award chairman

Gov. Jim Hunt today announced that Dr. Banks C. Talley Jr., Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs at N.C. State University, will be chairman of the selection committee for the first annual Governor's Business Awards in the Arts and Humanities.

The awards, sponsored by the state's arts, humanities and libraries, will provide incentive for such involvement and support among other companies.

The competition is open to all business firms in North Carolina regardless of size, as well as to foundations which are supported by corporate funds for the purpose of philanthropic support. The awards will be presented in Winston-Salem on Nov. 3, and are similar to those given on a national scale by the Business Committee for the Arts.

"The Governor's Business Council on the Arts and Humanities believes that support of the arts and humanities is essential to maintain and improve the quality of life for all North Carolinians," Governor Hunt said.

"I'm pleased to see that more and more business people are realizing the direct relationship between the arts and humanities and the economic and social well-being of their communities," he said. "Good cultural opportunities are a real plus when it comes to convincing industry to locate in a community."

Nominations can be for support in any of the arts and humanities including aid in such areas as local arts programming, historic preservation and libraries. Determination of the award recipients will be based on a number of factors, not just the size of a financial contribution.

Nominations should include information such as the specific arts, humanities or library projects in which the company has participated, the relative impact of the company's business.

Nominations should be in the form of a letter, not to exceed three pages, to the Program Coordinator, Governor's Business Council on the Arts and Humanities, N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, Raleigh, NC. 27611. The nomination period has been extended through Aug. 28, 1978.

The telephone number, for information, is (919) 733-4867.

Damage is noted

A Norfolk Carolina Telephone Company official estimated damage to telephone facilities in the recent waterspout at Kill Devil Hills to be $5,000. Company repairmen worked through the night to restore service so that anxious vacationers could assure relatives back home that they were unhurt.

Company Plant Manager S.O. Alexander said that 300 telephones were put out of service by the gaint waterspout that killed one person.

FORESTER SIDE — The diversified Don Buck is pictured above in his current role as combination forester, photographer, and hikemaster in the Rocky Mountains of Colorado.

New faces, new places: Creative Camera currently 'out of town,' but to return

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is a continuation in a series of weekly articles featuring new businesses and professional people in and around Perquimans County.)

One of Hertford's newest businesses is also the most distant at the present time. Don Buck, consulting forester and photographer is working in the Rocky Mountains of Colorado this summer as a forester, photographer, and hikemaster.

Buck started his consulting practice last summer and added photographer services in October under the name of Creative Camera.

A native of Hampton, Va., Buck graduated from Virginia Tech with a B.S. in Forest Resource Management. He worked for the Chesapeake Corporation of Virginia for five years stationed in West Point, Va., Henderson, N.C., and Elizabeth City. A timber buyer, Buck's major goal as a consultant is to aid timber owners in marketing their timber.

The photography trade started when several local residents encouraged Buck to offer his photography skills to the public. Following such encouragement, Buck began Creative Camera offering such services as home and studio portraits, passport pictures, weddings and special events, and commercial photography. A photograph of Hertford won Buck first place honors last April in the Pasquotank Art Show and Sale.

Buck has been in Granby, Colo. since late May working at Snow Mountain Ranch. He takes out hikes daily ranging from one to ten miles. He is also teaching basic photography and forest ecology using the attitude that the hike itself is a classroom setting. He is currently assembling a collection of wildflower photographs and has recorded several rare species on film.

Buck will return to Hertford later this summer and will resume both of his businesses.

Creative Camera is located at 206 E. Grubb Street in Hertford.
