Grammar School Chalkdust

My, my, my, everywhere I looked all week there was EBM (Easter Bunny Mania) at Hertford Grammar School. In the mornings the hallways were silent due to CAT testing, but in the afternoons, oh my, they came alive. I saw Easter baskets, Easter bonnets, colored eggs and bunny ears and masks, parading up and down the kindergarten hall. I even saw a class hopping happily along, complete with little cotton bunny tails and whiskers too. The kids really had a good time getting ready for the Easter Bunny.

Chocolate party
On Thursday the Hospitality Committee treated teachers to a Chocolate Party. I've heard that chocolate contains an ingredient to relieve stress and I guess they figured that after a week of CAT and EBM (see above) we really needed it. Anyway, the Chocolate Party was really fun and the rich food was positively sinful. I won't go into any more details because I don't want you drooling on the newspaper and you're probably chocolateated out from sneaking your kid's Easter candy anyway!

Sticker contest winner
Congratulations to Mrs. Ward for winning the Hidden Sticker contest for teachers. She found over 31 stickers hidden around the school. (There must be something wrong with me because I couldn't find even one sticker. Not one!!! I was even given a hint that there was one hidden in my room, but I couldn't even find that one - finally, on Friday, Mrs. Clemmons took pity on me and showed me where it was. I don't know how I could have missed it - there it was plain as day, under-my-desk! Like I get down on my hands and knees every day to look under my desk, right?) Anyway, Mrs. Ward won the grand prize, the ultimate treat - her class gets to see a movie in the library and she gets a break!

Easter egg hunt
Students from Mrs. Evelyn Stubbins' "Parent and Child-Care Development" class visited the TMH class on Friday. Anthony Bell, Vickie Parker, Deborah Coston, Angie Mallory, and Heather Rilee helped Miss Ansink's students make darling little Easter baskets and then had an indoor Easter egg hunt for them. The students searched from one end of the lunchroom to the other for candy-filled eggs. After sweeping through the lunchroom in about three minutes, leaving no object unsearched, the students and their helpers went back to their classroom to enjoy their loot and sing Easter songs. A great time was had by all.

Third grade stories
Have you been enjoying the creative stories written every week by the students in Mrs. Long's 3rd grade as much as I have? Those kids sure do have great imaginations. This week I thought for sure we'd have some Easter stories but instead we have, oh, I'll just let you read and enjoy them yourselves...

Inside a Deep Dark Cave
One night I walked into a cave and saw a skeleton. It started running after me. I stopped. Then I saw a mummy and a vampire. I jumped and started running. They ran after me. I ran faster. The vampire caught me but I escaped because I stuck my pencil in his heart! The mummy came after me but his mommy called him. I sighed with relief. Then the skeleton caught me but luckily he fell apart. When I reached the entrance of the cave, a whole bunch of werewolves jumped out. I took my pencil and went straight to their hearts, I killed them. Then the mummy came and I unwrapped him! Tonight was one scary night!

How to Make Breakfast
Now I will tell you how to make breakfast. First get everything you need - your bowl, cup, cereal, and milk. Next pour the cereal into the bowl. Get your juice and pour that into the cup. Finally you eat your breakfast.

The Brave Woodcutter
Once upon a time, there was a brave woodcutter who went to a town called Cedar Grove. He chopped and chopped until one day the people in Cedar Grove told him the mean things a giant had done to them. The brave woodcutter said he was going to stop the giant. He went inside a deep dark cave where the giant lived. The giant came out and shook the whole world. Even Cedar Grove shook. The woodcutter said in a little voice, "Are you the giant?" The giant said, "Yes". So they had a chat and became good friends.

End of school nearing
Finally, we at HGS hope you had a wonderful Easter and have enjoyed the vacation time. We only have approximately two months of school left and it will probably fly by so please help us make the best of the time left by taking an active interest in your child's work and school. Come see us!

Kraft accepts scholarship

Jennifer Dean Kraft, a senior at Perquimans County High School, has accepted an academic honors scholarship from Chowan College for the 1989-90 term.

Chowan College offers five scholarships valued at three-fourths tuition. To be considered, one must have a high school average of 3.2 or better, have an acceptable SAT score, and rank in the upper 25 percent of the graduating class.

These scholarships are renewable for a second year of study upon attainment of an academic average of 3.0 or better on all work attempted in the freshman year. Re-

Sonya Wilkins and Linda Pettaway were recently named to the All-Albemarle girls' basketball team. Sonya made first team, while Linda was named to the second team. The Lady Pirates were assets to their team all during the 1988-89 season. cipients are jointly recommended by the Director of Admissions and the Director of Financial Planning to the Dean of the College.

Kraft, daughter of Mrs. Judy Lee Kraft of Hertford, plans to study in the pre-psychology curriculum at Chowan College. She is a member of Woodville Baptist Church.

Chowan is a two-year residential college with over 950 students who represent 20 states and 14 countries. Over 40 associate degree programs are offered. Chowan is one of seven institutions of higher education related to the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina.
