United States Air Force as assistant chaplain, having been licensed to preach by the First Missionary Baptist Church of Biloxi, Mississippi. While in the Air Force, he served tours of duty in the Philippines, Formosa, and Turkey with intermittent short stays in Germany, Italy, and Greece.

After being discharged from military service, Reverend Ballard, ordained by the Rowan Baptist Association of North Carolina, served as assistant pastor of the Mount Vernon Baptist Church of High Point, while attending Shaw University in Raleigh, North Carolina. While at Shaw, he was an honor student selected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, inducted into the Alpha Kappa Mu National Honor Society, sang in the University Chorale Society, worked with the student government, taught in the Sunday school of the University Church, was chaplain of his Freshman Class, president of his Sophomore Class, and was graduated with the A.B. degree as salutatorian of his class in 1962.

From Shaw University, Reverend Ballard moved to Duke University in Durham, North Carolina where he became the first Negro to enter the Divinity School. While at Duke, he was a three time recipient of a Rockefeller Grant for Theological Education, an award given annually to twenty-five students in the United States and Canada. He was graduated in 1966, receiving the M. Div. degree as one of the top ten (10) students in a class of 177 students.

From 1959 through 1965 Reverend Ballard was pastor of the First Institutional Baptist Church of Winston-Salem, North Carolina. In August of 1965, he was instrumental in effecting a merger between the First Institutional Baptist Church and the West End Baptist Church, another church in Winston-Salem, thus becoming the pastor and founder of the new United Metropolitan Baptist Church.

The Reverend James D. Ballard, the son of Mrs. J.H. Ballard and the late Reverend J. H. Ballard, was born and reared in High Point, North Carolina, receiving his elementary and secondary education in that city. Immediately upon being graduated from the William Penn High School, he served four years in the

Preyer In Opposition To Gasoline Tax

WASHINGTON -- Congressman Richardson Preyer was one of those signing a letter today expressing to President Ford the signers strong opposition to a proposed 10 cent per gallon federal tax on gasoline.

"I think all of us want to support every reasonable effort to combat inflation but the gasoline tax would put too much of the burden on people who are least able to carry it," Preyer declared.

The Congressman said a gasoline tax is the wrong way to control inflation because it "pushes the already strained working man and working woman past the financial breaking point."

"The place to tax gasoline is the excessive profits of the big oil companies, not the average consumer," Preyer said.

The text of the letter to President Ford allows:

Dear Mr. President: We strenuously object to the proposal which has surfaced in the form of a tril balloon to impose an additional 10 cents per gallon federal excise tax on gasoline.

A tax of this nature would only have the effect of reinforcing the spiral of inflation and would push the already strained working man and working woman past the financial breaking point.

It has been suggested that such a tax would encourage greater reliance on mass transportation. An admirable goal, but impractical in view of the fact that 78% of the public already is forced to rely on private automobiles to get to and from work because of inadequate mass transit. There is not question that the burden of this tax would have to be borne on the shoulders of those least able to bear it.

Mr. President, we stand ready as your copartners in government to fight the battle of inflation and to restore a healthy economy. However, we do not think this proposal is the right answer.

Drifters Established

GREENSBORO - Dr. Isaac H. Miller, the president of Bennett College in Greensboro, N.C., recently announced the establishment of a $10,000 Revolving Emergency Loan Fund by the members of Drifters, Inc.

"The fund will enable the young women of Bennett who might find themselves in a tight financial situation at some point in their educational career to overcome part of their burden," explained Dr. Miller.

"There are times when students need money to purchase books, for a doctor's fee, or other emergencies which tend to come up unexpectedly. We have cases of students who need fare to go home during one of the several breaks."

The Drifters, a social organization with over 235 members in fourteen chapters across the country, has already set up the first installment of the three-year fund.

"It is most assuring to have this fund established at a time when the general public seems to waiver in its commitment to education and questions the dollars which it invests in the private colleges. These women have demonstrated their belief in our ability to

"Fairness To JoAnne Little Committee" Formed

Mr. Golden Frinks and The Reverend Leon White announced the formation of a "Fairness to JoAnne Little Committee" on a state-wide basis. Immediate strategies developed included a demonstration in Raleigh on Monday, September 30 in front of the Wake County courthouse where a hearing was held for a Writ of Habeas Corpus filed for JoAnne Little by her attorneys.

Women attending the meeting, included Mrs. Valma Hopkins, Winston-Salem, Mrs. Sarah M. Bell, Coordinator of the Tarboro Concerned Citizens for Justice Against the Death Penalty, formulated plans to mobilize the women throughout North Carolina on behalf of JoAnne Little. Projected target date for organization of women is October 12, 1974. Women throughout the state are being invited. The meeting will be held in Durham, North Carolina.
