First Baptist Church

organized 1871

Washington Drive at Hobson
HIGH POINT, NORTH CAROLINA

Dr. Nancy Bullock McGhee, Professor in the Humanities Department at Hampton Institute, will be the speaker for the one hundred and third Anniversary observance at the First Baptist Church, 701 E. Washington Drive on Sunday, November 24 at 11:00 A.M.

Dr. McGhee holds the Bachelor's Degree from Shaw University, the Master's Degree from Columbia University and the Doctor of Philosophy Degree from the University of Chicago. Dr. McGhee has done further study at the University of London, Cambridge University and the Sidney Sussex College in England.

Dr. McGhee's teaching experience includes positions held at Louisville Municipal College, Kentucky; Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Missouri, and the College of William and Mary.

Studies leading to Dr. McGhee's doctorate were developed under grants by the General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation, the Julius Rosenwald Fund and the Department of English of the University of Chicago.

Dr. McGhee has distinguished herself as a writer, is the recipient of numerous professional awards and has traveled extensively in Europe and in Africa.

The speaker is the daughter of the late Dr. O.S. Bullock who was Pastor of the First Baptist Church from 1906 to 1921.

A FAIR SHARE OF REVENUE SHARING

By: Travis L. Francis
Director Community Organization
U.C.C. Commission for Racial Justice
North Carolina - Virginia Field Office

Revenue sharing was signed into law in October of 1972. Its basic purpose being to return federal funds directly to state and local governments with "fe strings attached." The "Revenue Sharing Act" provides for a total of $30.2 billion to be distributed automatically to state and local government for a five year period beginning January 1972.

One third of the allocation for each state goes to the state government. The remaining two thirds is then divided by county according to a basic formula. The county share in turn is then divided into three parts: For the county government, for the municipal governments and for the townships in proportion to the taxes each collects. The principal idea behind Revenue Sharing is that local governments are more knowledgeable about and more responsive to the needs of their residents. Under Revenue Sharing, the governors, state legislators, mayors, county executives, county councilmen, and city will determine how federal Revenue Sharing funds will be used.

Through June 30, North Carolina has received a cumulative grand total of nearly 363 million dollars in Revenue Sharing Funds. The counties received about 130 million, municipalities 112 million and the state the remainder. This program expires in 1976, however, prior to this time, N.C. will have received upwards of $760 million.

Recently, the U.S. Justice Department Community Relations Service director stated that Blacks and the poor should keep abreast of the use of Revenue Sharing funds to avoid getting the "Short end of the Stick". The same official further stated, "I think its safe to say that minorities know the least about all this, so an education process is an absolute necessity."

There is an overall lack of awareness on the part of the public regarding Revenue Sharing. It is our intention to increase this awareness to the point where the community is taking a more active part in the decision making process regarding the spending of Revenue Sharing Funds. It is the responsibility of the community, to see to it that the justice Department and the Office of Revenue Sharing are not lax in the enforcement of civil rights in the disbursement of these funds.

Recently, the revenue sharing office in Washington, D.C. sent a team to Monroe, La. to check out allegations of discrimination in the disbursement of funds. The Revenue Sharing planners were subsequently ordered to submit a new plan for the expenditure of funds. In this case, and in many others, this matter would not have come to light if not raised by the community.

Churches should be particularly alert about revenue sharing in that this can often be the source of sought after funds for a senior citizen's program or youth recreation project.

For further information regarding revenue sharing, contact, Travis L. Francis of the Commission for Racial Justice, North Carolina Field Office P.O. Box 1721, Raleigh, N.C. (919) 833-3071. We are planning a community workshop on revenue sharing which will soon be announced.

1st Baptist Church's 103 Birthday

A & T Is Money To Greensboro

GREENSBORO - A&T State University is not only one of the state's leading institutions of higher education, it's also a big spender in the city and country.

A year-long economic impact study released Friday by Dr. W. Archie Blount, shows that expenditures made in Greensboro and Guilford County in 1973-74 by university-connected sources, amounted to $41,479,001.

"We are just about in line with colleges located in communities of this size," said Dr. Blount, director of institutional studies at A&T. "And we believe that if you pull that type of money out of a community, you would certainly feel it."

Blount's study is based on the American Council on Education's book, "Estimating the Impact of the Colleges and Universities on the Local Economy." The book was authored by John Cassrey and Herbert H. Isaacs.

The A&T study was based on expenditures made by the university's students, faculty and staff, the university herself for services, athletic fans and visitors to the campus.

Blount noted that the study really reflects estimates based on the economic output of 4,700 students and 758 faculty and staff members, which A&T had in 1972-73. He said the figure would be somewhat higher now that the enrollment figure is nearly 5,000.

The A&T researcher said the estimate of expenditures made by the groups connected with the university totaled $22,791,045 during the year.

The amount included nearly $11 million spent by the students, $8.9 million spent by the faculty and staff, $1.9 million spent by A&T for services and taxes.

Shaw Participates In Million Dollar Fellows Program

RALEIGH - Shaw University has announced plans to participate in a million dollar nation wide program designed to bring campus and non-academic worlds closer together. The program is a joint effort between Shaw and the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation. With funds provided by the Lilly Endowment, the Foundation places representatives of business, diplomacy, and the professors on college campuses as visiting professors, known as Woodrow Wilson Senior Fellows.

Landrum Bolling, Executive Vice President of the Lilly Endowment, emphasized that it was to "promote greater contact, understanding, and sharing of ideas and experiences between the academic community and the 'outer world'". In 1973-74, the pilot year of the program, 69 Senior Fellows visited 67 campuses throughout the country, mainly small, private, liberal arts colleges with high admissions standards.

Among the Senior Fellows who will be visiting colleges for a second year are David Broder, Pulitzer Prize winning journalist for The Washington Post;

George Romney; former Senators Margaret Chase Smith and Fred Harris; Thomas Watson of IBM; and Sir Herbert Marchant, former British Ambassador to Cuba. In addition, Senior Fellows this year will be Alan Smith, Treasurer of General Motors; public opinion authority George Gallup; and H.M. Agnew, Director of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory.

Senior Fellows remain on campus for a week or more and offer lectures, participate in seminars, and are available for conferences and informal social encounters with faculty members and students. "Particularly pleasing to me",

Leaves $68,000 To Shaw

RALEIGH - Mrs. Claranette Doak Brock, a Greensboro, N.C. native and life long resident of Mt. Olive, N.C. has donated $68,000 to Shaw University in the form of a bequest. Mrs. Brock died on June 3, 1972.

Mrs. Brock, long-time funeral home proprietor, was married to the late Cliffeous Brock.

She received her education at Bennett High School (now Bennett College) and an undergraduate degree at A&T State University.

The check was presented to Shaw officials by Mrs. Brock's nephew Thomas L. Carter. Carter said, "my aunt was a loving and giving person. She believed in helping those less fortunate."

Shaw University plans to establish a scholarship fund in honor of Mrs. Brock.

W.S.S.U. Band Receives $2,000

WINSTON-SALEM - The Schaefer Brewing Company will present an award of a $2,000.00 contribution to the Winston-Salem State University Marching Band for its performance in the Sixth Annual Afro-American Day Parade held on September 15 in New York.

New Program

"Feeling Good," CTW's new prime-time series on health care for adults, will premiere on the 250 stations of the Public Broadcasting Service Wednesday night, November 20 (8 p.m. EST, 7 CST).

The experimental series -- 26 hour-long shows to be broadcast each week for a full year -- has been characterized as television's most ambitious attempt to both inform people and motivate them toward healthier living.

It is the first program to be created for adults by CTW, pioneers of such successful TV productions as "Sesame Street" and developing successful marketing/management techniques through firsthand coaching from marketing experts from major U.S. corporations, academic institutions, and certain government agencies;

2. To provide minority businessmen and women with an opportunity for interaction with representatives from major business

"The Electric Company."

Feeling Good will employ a variety-magazine format using animation, song, dance, comedy and documentaries to treat 11 priority health topics: alcohol abuse, cancer, child care, exercise, dental care, the health care delivery system, heart disease, hypertension, mental health, nutrition and prenatal care.

Each topic will be treated several times during the series' first year.

Several informational and behavioral goals have been developed for each topic. The aim is to inform people about the symptoms and methods of avoiding topic. The aim is to inform people about the symptoms and methods of avoiding various health problems and to motivate them to take some actions in preventing their occurrence or to decrease their danger.

The underlying philosophy of Feeling Good is that people have more control over their health than they realize. The show will point out some of the fundamentals of good
