"Make America Strong" Rally Held At Bennett

Mrs. Bolton Also Shares Program

The importance of inter-racial cooperation in serving national morale and the unity of the American people was emphasized in a patriotic rally called "Make America Strong" day at Bennett College, Sunday, July 12, at 3:00 p. m., at which time Governor J. Melville Broughton of North Carolina and Representative Frances F. Bolton from the 22nd district of Ohio were the principal speakers.

The "America Be Strong" rally brings the Bennett College summer institutes to a close and at the same time demonstrates the solidarity of Greensboro and Guilford county citizens around the common ideals of our national life," said Dr. David D. Jones, president of the college in describing the purpose of the meeting.

Governor Broughton, who is one of the south's broader minded citizens, was born in North Carolina and has had a varied career. He has served as principal of a high school, newspaper reporter, trustee of college and library, and superintendent of Sunday school and teacher of men's Bible class for the last 15 years, besides having had a long and interesting political career which began in 1914. He was elected governor of North Carolina November 1940, and inaugurated January 9, 1941. He is one southern leader who firmly believes that "we in the south have to change our way of living."

An interesting phase of the program was the presentation of two original skits highlighting the areas covered during the six week period of training. The child health institute cast included: Mrs. Ella V. Griffin, Roxbury, Mass.; Mrs. Alma McRae, Hamlet, N. C.; Dr. Muriel Petioni, New York city; Miss Ruth Skelton and Mr. Jethro Ancrum of Greensboro. The Community Leadership work

Miss Carol Brice Soloist At Bennett

She Is Cousin of Charlotte H. Brown

John Brice, vice president of Palmer Memorial Institute, and cousin of Charlotte Hawkins Brown, founder and president of the same institution, was guest soloist at the huge patriotic rally, "Make America Strong," at Bennett college Sunday, July 12.

Miss Brice is a graduate of Taladega college where she studied voice under Frank Harrison. After graduation she won a fellowship to study at the Juilliard graduate school of music. While there she became, upon the recommendation of Harry T. Burleigh, a member and soloist of the fashionable St. George's Episcopal church of New York city. Miss Brice is a young singer of great promise, with a rich, full contralto voice.

She opened the meeting with "The Star Spangled Banner" and followed Mrs. Bolton's address with "God Bless America."

Audience of 2,500 Hear Broughton At Bennett College

Inter-Racial Co-Operation Urged

"It is of grim necessity for us to reflect upon what we can do individually and collectively to make America strong," declared Governor J. Melville Broughton, of North Carolina as he addressed an audience of 2,500 people at a huge patriotic rally called "Make America Strong" day at Bennett College, Sunday, July 12, at which time Mrs. Frances F. Bolton, of the United States House of Representatives, 22nd district of Ohio also shared the program.

"The 'America Be Strong' rally brings the Bennett college summer institute to a close and at the same time demonstrates the solidarity of Greensboro and Guilford county citizens around the common ideals of our national life," said Dr. David D. Jones, president of the college in describing the purpose of the meeting.

Governor Broughton, who is one of the south's broader minded citizens, was born in North Carolina and has had a varied career, gaining a deep insight into human nature as evidenced in his liberal attitude toward the Negro. He expressed great admiration for Bennett College's pioneering spirit in the field of education and thinks her one of the greatest institutions in the south with the kind of leadership which makes her a force in race relations in the south.

Keenly aware of his responsibilities to insure every citizen regardless of race, the rights guaranteed by the constitution of these United States, Governor Broughton pulls no punches when discussing the racial issue. Making no apology for his people whom he realizes are not perfect, he still abhors the prejudices, the ignorance, the injustices that make for racial inequalities and misadjustments which are weakening forces in the all-out effort to "Make America Strong" in this grim emergency.

Emphasizing the fact that Negroes could obtain justice in the courts of North Carolina, Governor Broughton

Negroes Have Much To Gain In Present War

That Negroes have much to gain and more to lose in the present war was the opinion expressed by Dr. F. D. Bluford, president of A. and T. College, in an address to faculty and student body at the summer school recently.

The president urged the audience to become equipped to do their part in the war and to be willing to sacrifice their all to save democracy. He reminded the teachers that they could play an important part in the present crisis by inspiring the attitudes of citizens of this Commonwealth. President Bluford also expressed the belief that although America is not everything we want it to be, more opportunities exist here than in any other country in the world.

Citing the fact that A. and T. College is well prepared to equip students for service to their country in such fields as radio-communications, industrial chemistry, welding, bricklaying, machine shop work, plumbing and aviation, the president informed the audience that young men may prepare themselves to become specialists in various fields by enlisting in the army enlisted reserve which starts functioning in September.

It was pointed out that the army enlisted reserve functions separately from the R. O. T. C. for in the former, one is trained to become a specialist.

The rally is designed to build a high morale for the winning of the war and to encourage ordinary citizens to gladly co-operate in every phase of the fight for victory.

Mrs. William P. Hobby, Director WAAC Speaks On "Role of Our Government"

Mrs. Hobby delivers address before institute on "The Role of Our Federal Government" held under auspices of Non-Partisan Council of Public Affairs of Alpha Kappa Sorority, Howard university, Washington, D. C., Monday, July 6. The entire text of the address follows:

"I am happy to have this opportunity to attend the opening meeting of your institute on 'The Role of Our Federal Government,' to discuss with you some of our mutual responsibilities as citizens and some ways of meeting these responsibilities as women. There are many special ways, but naturally the way that lies on the tip of my tongue and in the bottom of my heart, is that way which leads to membership in the newly established Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

For the past week, one of your great leaders, and one of my good friends, has been working at my side, giving me the benefit of her kind counsel. In the final selection of the 40 outstanding Negro women who will go to the WAAC's officer candidate school at Fort Des Moines, two weeks from today, July 20, I refer, of course, to the leader, named by Ida M. Tarbell as "one of the 50 most illustrious women in America."

Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, founder-president of Bethune Cookman college, founder-president of the National Council of Negro Women, and a practicing participant in more good works than I have time to list. Mrs. Bethune, who served as special consultant to the secretary of war, sat with me and with a group called directors' representatives, distinguished women, eminent in
