Old Flim-Flam Game Jails Two

Pair In Toils Of Law After Victimizing Woman To The Tune Of $800

Two Negro men who allegedly flimflammed Mrs. Linton, operator of the Grand Hotel in a old flimflam game out of $800 were being held without bond in city jail pending completion of a police investigation.

Officers were holding Walter Henderson, 20, Baltimore, and Paul June Gibson, 24, Danville, Va., but released three other men whom they termed "victims of circumstance" and listed as Lester Benton Tatum, O'Neal Amaker, and Aobert Tatum, taxi cab driver. The three men were in a cab which the pair took to Reidsville on their flight to avoid capture, officers said, and "had nothing to do with" the incident in which Ruby Linton, Negro woman, 902½ East Market street, said she had been relieved of $800.

The Linton woman, who operates the Grand Hotel, told police the two men took the $800 after allegedly telling her they could print new money from her old bills by a "special process." She charged that Henderson drew at they declared.

.38 caliber pistol on her in her hotel room while performing the "experiment" and the he and his companion then fled the hotel in a taxi. The driver of the cab which took the men from the hotel to the Southern passenger station here became suspicious, he said, when they hopped out and took another taxi instead of going into the station and he reported the incident to officers. In the meantime, the pair had asked the driver of the second cab to take them to Reidsville to see a sick relative, he later reported to police, and two men who were with the cab driver agreed to go along with him on the trip.

Sheriff L. W. Worsham and Police Chief R. A. Allen of Reidsville reported speedy capture of the men after being warned to be on the lookout for the cab by Greensboro police. They captured a .38 caliber pistol, reportedly the one used by Henderson in the hold-up, and found the $800 in the back seat of the car.

MAYNOR RENDERS SUPERB SHOW

SOPRANO PROVES SELF ACCOMPLISHED ARTIST

On the extremely rare occasions when an artist approaches the peaks of perfection, is lavishly endowed with the elusive sense of fine showmanship, and is presented with an enthusiastic audience, such a concert results as that which was presented in Harrison auditorium at A. and T. college last night by Dorothy Maynor, Negro soprano.

It was a keen mind with an understanding of balance and public taste which planned the program, and it was a clear, accented voice which sang the program. The Maynor soprano accurate, and beautiful voice which is in one breath a sparkling brilliant thing, and quick as a flash it is low vibrant dulcet voice which nudges the bounds of the contralto.

The audience was captivated completely with the opening number, Gismunda's aria from "Otto," (Handel), in which the soloist was both effective and imaginative, and it was still clamoring for more when the artist, who had been extremely generous with encores, sought so eagerly by the audience, decided to conclude her appearance.

No flaw could be found in either the German or French groups for the standpoint of musicianship or command of language and interpretation, and the soloist's choices of Brahms' "Lullaby" and Schubert's "Ave Maria" among her encores were presented against the backdrop of a ner capacity house which was breathlessly quiet until the end, when thunderous applause marked a measure of the appreciation which was felt.

Her voice was beautiful — brilliant, sympathetic and thoroughly controlled. Diction was excellent, and the mind behind it was that of an excellently trained musician with a fine sense of the dramatic.—D.S.M.

Saint Stephens Christian Church is presenting the Soul Stirring Gospel Singers of Winston-Salem, Sunday afternoon at 5 p. m. The program is sponsored by class number one of Miss Alice Hudson.

Smoot & Dilworth Funeral Home To Hold Opening Sunday, Nov. 25

The editor of the Future Outlook visited the new funeral home, owned and operated by Smoot & Dilworth of 710 S. Ashe street. This chapel is in a very ideal locality, beautifully decorated with modern equipment to give the best of service.

Smoot and Dilworth are not strangers in Greensboro in the business of morticians. I have been knowing them for more than eighteen years. I feel that it is a fine gesture to consider I. S. Dilworth partner into this business due to splendid character and reputation he has given in his own home town and other cities.

This company own three well prepared automobiles. It is the duty of The Future Outlook to encourage more business in ones professional field, so we The Future Outlook along with many other friends are proud to congratulate the Smoot and Dilworth Funeral Home. Please call on them for an early visit during their opening of Saturday November 25.

Aggies Capture 13-0 Over Smith

A. and T. college closed their grid season with a 13-6 victory over traditional Thanksgiving rivals from Johnson C. Smith university before 7,000 fans here yesterday.

Fisher scored first for the visitors after getting an Aggie fumble on the 26-yard line. A. and T. got all its points in the third, Weaver running 24 yards for the first and Reed plunging over for the second.

The statistics showed the teams as evenly matched as the score.

Score by periods:
A. and T. 0 0 13 0—13
J. C. Smith 6 0 0 0—6
A. and T.: Touchdowns —
Weaver, Reed. Point after —
Weaver. J. C. Smith: Touchdown—Fisher.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lane of 2210 East Market street gave their daughter, Miss Mary Lane a surprise birthday party, Saturday night, November 10. The party was highly appreciated. She received a lot of lovely gifts.

THE STATE MAY GET NEGRO ESCAPEE

Following investigation by Massachusetts attorney general of conditions of the trial of William Robert Taylor in Guilford Superior court for attempted armed robbery, it is probable that the Greensboro Negro, who escaped from prison in May, 1944, will be returned to North Carolina to serve the remainder of an eight to 12-year sentence.

Information received here from Raleigh reveals that Attorney General Harry McMullan has received a letter from the attorney general of Massachusetts, saying that an investigation there at the behest of Gov. Maurice J. Tobin has revealed no evidence of unfairness in the trial of Taylor or of later mistreatment of him in prison. Civic bodies and some individuals in the Bay state opposed the Negro's extradition which had been requested by North Carolina.

Taylor had fled to Massachusetts after his escape from state prison in May, 1944. He had been convicted and sentenced July 30, 1941, in Guilford Superior court here with Judge J. A. Rousseau, Wilkesboro, presiding. Records on the case show he had attempted to rob Elizabeth Albright after tying her to a chair with a piece of rope and gagging her.

At present, it is understood, Taylor is at liberty in Boston under $4,000 bond. He has filed notice of appeal to higher court, scheduled for January, 1946, of a denial of writ of habeas corpus for him early this year in Boston. Taylor sought the writ contending he had been subjected to beatings and abuse in this state.

The Massachusetts investigation is expected to have considerable weight when Taylor's appeal is heard.
