Windsor Community Center Demolished

The old 1929 Windsor Community Center structure is being demolished shortly before the day of Independence of 1967. Up to this date of June 28, 1967, hundreds of thousands of youths have swum at this spot on the corner of Gorrell and Benbow Road. The younger generation is looking forward to a more modern recreational plant with indoors swimming pool, basketball court, and several other modern recreational facilities by 1968.

This year's Fourth of July will see no recreational activities being held at the center, but the youths of the city hope that the year of 1968 will again see the Community Center alive with activities for Independence Day.
