7 COTTON VARIETIES RECOMMENDED IN N. C.

Seven varieties of cotton are recommended for use in North Carolina under various conditions, in a publication prepared for general distribution by representatives of the State College Extension Service, the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station, State College; and the Department of Agriculture. They are: Coker 100 for all areas, Mexican and Farm Relief for the Upper Coastal Plain and Piedmont areas, Carolina Foster for the heavier soils of the lower Coastal Plain and Dixie Triumph, Clewilt and Humco Dixie for planting on all lands on which wilt disease has caused substantial losses on the common susceptible varieties. The publication also contains other valuable information on standardization, seed, soils, preparation of land, fertilizers and their application; time; planting, rate of seeding, chop plow, cultivation and care of plants, harvesting, handpicking, ginning; storage, marketing and rotations in connection with the production of cotton. It is available for free distribution to interested growers upon request to the Agricultural Editor at State College, Raleigh for Extension Circular No. 234 "Approved Practices for the Production of Cotton." The circular points out that the best planting dates in the Coastal Plain are from April 10 to 30, depending on the locality, the soil and seasonal conditions. The best planting dates in the Piedmont area are April 20 to 30, and to May 5 in the western portion and along the northern edge of the Cotton Belt.

FARM QUESTIONS

Q.—To what extent is lespedeza sericea grown in North Carolina? A.—Due to the fact that it takes two or three years to get this crop to the stage where hay can be cut very little is grown in this state. Roughly, there is not over 5,000 acres grown, and this estimate is rather high. There were, however, a total of 802,000 acres of the annual lespedeza grown in the State last year, which makes this the third crop from the standpoint of acreage grown last year, being exceeded only by cotton and corn. Q.—What is the proper temperature for a brooder house? A.—The brooder should be regulated for the first week to 98 degrees F at the outer edge of the canopy and on a level with the chicks' heads. The temperature should then be reduced five degrees each week until the sixth week. Where brick or rock brooders are used, a room temperature of 70 to 75 degrees is sufficient. Care must be taken not to run a subnormal temperature as the chicks will crowd and cause disease and deaths from over heating. Detailed information on the subject may be obtained free by addressing a request to the Agricultural Editor at State College for Extension Circular No. 233, "Control of Fusarium Wilt of Cotton."

ENJOY ALL THE PLEASURE THERE IS IN SMOKING— Let up—Light up a Camel

CAMELS GIVE ME TWO BIG THINGS I WANT IN A CIGARETTE—MILDNESS AND GOOD, RICH FLAVOR. CAMELS MAKE SMOKING MEAN A LOT MORE TO ME. "TO WALK A MILE FOR A CAMEL" TOO!

WHEN the combination to a safe gets lost, Harold J. Weidman is likely to get a call. His work as a locksmith is opening locks by touch and sound. Often that's a long, wearisome job, and, as Harold says, "No task for a man with jittery nerves." So he pauses now and then to let up—light up a mild, tasty Camel. He finds these recesses pleasant and refreshing. SMOKERS FIND— Camels never jangle the nerves

THE GOOD SAMARITAN

In some respects pharmacists may be likened to the Good Samaritan. In the hour of need, when there is illness, pharmacists work hand-in-hand with physicians.
