

Student-Faculty Basketball Games Held

Appalachian State Teachers College, way up yonder in the Mountains, is probably unaware of the fact, but it scored a triumph in Kings Mountain Tuesday night as four former stars from way up there provided thrills and spills — and laughs galore in the annual Student faculty game in the local gym.

Of course, Appalachianites did not get all the laughs — they gave the fans most of the basketball. Wake Forest scored as Professor Hendricks took his turn at bat. So did Queens when Lowrance and Morris took their turn. But the big stuff went to Appalachian.

Thought that he was on the gridiron most of the time when he wasn't referring — which he took turn-about doing, and blocked out the Student-forward whom he was guarding. The forward finally tried to tackle Mr. Farthing, but he couldn't phase the hefty Mountaineer. Fulkerson, who was more than willing to let Farthing have the whistle part of the time, looked all cut of place beside little Watterson, four-foot high school lad who did the running-under in the spree.

Davidson was represented by Mot felt, who did some of the scoring for the faculty — and he got around right well on the floor. In the girls mix-up, Mrs. Hendricks did right well at center — with Lowrance probably splitting honors with both Carlisle and Morris at guard. Anyway, it don't make much never mind who you pick. They were all stars — and most of them saw stars.

Everything that happened isn't exactly clear. There were individual cheering factions for the different stars — for everybody from Bill Craig, who helped the men teachers to Virginia Allen and Dot McGinnis, who helped the women. And Miss Carson, the Music Teacher-water girl also drew lots of cheers. And serving the women out on the floor.

Oh yeah, the scores were: Male, 35 all (the tie wasn't played off.) Female: Students 31, Faculty 16.

“By George”

The Mountaineer boys and girls played their last home game here last Friday night, (with the exception of the Student-faculty tilt Tuesday P. M.) splitting the bill with Bessemer City. The boys won and the girls lost.

This was the girls' second defeat at the hands of the Bessemer Ccrap per team, and the boys second victory over them.

Summitt, as usual, ran all over the place, shooting 10 to Bessemers 23 points. Sargeant, Kings Mountain's leading scorer, shot 8 of losers 12 points. Harmon, the brunette who plays a not-so-bad game both on the court and off, fouled out of the tilt in the third period. Shuford and Hook both showed to right good advantage for the Bessemer team.

The boys was a Mountaineer victory from the start, the final score finding the locals ahead, 32 to 17. Ballard and Willis came in with 9 and 8 points respectively, to share scoring honors. Neill, the fast little Bessemer City lad, took honors in that direction, scoring 6 of the losers 17 points.

Tonight (Thursday), the Mountaineers head for Cliffside to play off the game that was snowed out a few weeks back. We predict a double victory.

A report from Cassel, head of the Western Conference Athletic Activities on Feb. 16 showed the Kings Mountain girls to be in third place out of 13 teams. They were one-half a game behind Shelby. Standing at this time are unknown to this corner, but the Shelby girls have lost two games since then, so the locals are probably ahead of them now.
