THIS 'N THAT By Alice Burton Patterson Grove Section

March 11. Hi everybody! I had meant to write a farewell column this week but when I went to the Herald office last week to see them I had decided to quit, the man I talked to (he didn't tell me his name) asked me to keep on writing—here I am again.

The seventh grade Reading Contest was held at Patterson Grove last Wednesday afternoon. Melba Ruth Costner was the winner. The title of her reading was: "Never Take Your Wife to a Ball Game." The other contestants were Nancy Plonk and Jennie Lee Belk. The judges were Mrs. I. G. Patterson, Mrs. J. D. Ratterree and Mrs. D. M. Ratterree.

Melba Ruth will go to Shelby to take part in the county-wide contest.

Who was it that said these words? "All honor to the winner."

The whole world has cried for years. But to the ones who try and fail, I give honor, glory and tears. I don't know who the writer of those words is but anyway I think anyone who tries deserves credit too — So congratulations to Melba Ruth, Nancy and Jennie Lee.

Social news:
Miss Lucille Ware had as her guest Sunday, little Misses Cornelia and Kathryn Ware, and Misses Lucille Edwards, and Blanche Hornbuckle.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonnie Burton and Miss Faye Huffstetler of Charlotte were week-end guests of relatives here.
