

Here's How News Story Would Read If Editor "Considered All Angles" Before Printing It

Herbert J. Pate, editor of the Kings Mountain Capital Democrat at Tishomingo, gave his readers an illustration of what newspaper stories would be like if an editor considered every angle of a story too thoroughly before printing it, says an article in a recent issue of the Sconer State Press.

Under the heading, "Suppose We Were Like This: SOME-BODY DID SOMETHING," Pate printed the following story June 6:

Editor's Note: — Any actual resemblance of this story to anybody, the reader knows is a strange coincidence as it was just written in my spare time.

Charges were filed today against a long-time subscriber before Judge Lee can't mention his name because he is having job printing done on a complaint that he had attacked Mr. (name deleted, friend of the editor's).

Mr. (the same long-time subscriber) is alleged to have wielded a type of weapon can't be named, harmful to sales) in the reported assault.

The very trivial incident occurred in front of the (man requested his place of business be omitted).

The man, hurt slightly, died for some strange reason in the (harmful publicity for institution) hospital. The doctor said that although the man rolled off the bed and fractured his skull, thus causing immediate death and permanent injury, he would rather not be mentioned as meeting him. "You know how those doctors are, people just will draw the wrong conclusions."

An attorney (name of his city not given, might be a harmful clue) said he would rather nobody knew he was defending the man.

"Don't mention this in the paper," said the charged man, "and don't mention my name. You know how long I've been taking the paper. I want you to co-operate with me (check up, circulation dept. How far behind? Oh, just a year. Well, guess we ought to suppress it.)"

Attorney (name deleted, possible harmful effect on civil clients, who made a sensational address on the freedom of the press a few days ago

no more legal from me if I have to never file another case."

(name omitted). He ran a one-column by two-inch ad four years ago and decided advertising would not pay on the basis of its results) was charged jointly with (long-time subscriber).

(1x2 advertiser four years ago) blamed (long-time subscriber) with handling the (name of weapon harmful to sales) in the attack on (friend of editor's in front of (omitted by request).

Somebody will prosecute the case (county attorney having campaign placards printed here) before Judge (permission for use of his name not given) sometime soon (date can not be named. They don't want a bunch of citizens littering up the courthouse).

Funeral services for (friend of editor's) were expected to be held at the (name of church (editor doesn't like preacher. So, name omitted).

Burial will be held in the (reporter didn't have time to check) cemetery with the (don't want any more charity funerals) mortuary in charge. Written by somebody who didn't want to be connected with it
