

Business Section To Be Cleaner

City Manager H. L. Burdette has worked out arrangements with the Merchants Association to have cleaner back lots in the business sections. The merchants are going to co-operate by putting out their trash at 6 p. m. each afternoon which will be promptly collected by the garbage truck. Heretofore trash was swept out at all hours of the day and was widely scattered before it could be collected. With the new set up all the trash will be put out by all the merchants at one time, and collected immediately. Glee Bridges, President of the Association, asked that all merchants co-operate so that Kings Mountain will be a cleaner, more sanitary town.

A push trash cart has been recently purchased and the front streets are cleared of paper and trash twice daily, according to City Manager Burdette. "We are trying to keep Kings Mountain clean and will appreciate the co-operation of the citizens," said the City Manager.

Washington Snapshots

address before the National Association of Manufacturers first disclosed the urgency of the task.

The stories told by some of these manufacturers are extremely important. They get down to the bedrock of bottlenecks. More will be reported in this column from time to time out the first thing they all say is that until the President's Dec. 29 fireside chat, in which he described America as the arsenal of democracy, they had assumed that defense production should be superimposed upon normal business.

That was the theme song from all Washington officials — "maintain present standards and do the defense job too." Now, however, defense is becoming important enough that normal production is to be made of secondary importance. Already, for example, Washington talk is heard that the automobile industry should not produce new models this year, and maybe stop automobile production altogether so it may turn out airplanes.

If the government should sanction such a program, and the people accept it, then it will be done. Manufacturers say they don't produce something just because they themselves think it is a good idea but because there is a sale for what they produce — the people want it. They consider themselves servants of public demands.

The second common complaint is lack of planning in Washington. Take priorities, for example. These are suggestions or instructions from the government to manufacturers as to what they should produce first.

So far, priorities are called "preference ratings" and have been issued by several government agencies instead of a single one which can coordinate all priorities. To illustrate one manufacturer was told by one agency that his product had an A-1 preference, meaning he should turn it out ahead of everything else. But he needed a machine to produce it. And his machine, from a second agency, got an A-3 rating — two grades lower.

Another manufacturer, to speed things, had broken his contract up into parts and farmed it out to sub-contractors. He had agreed to furnish the finished product to the government at his cost plus a fee of 5 percent. The government was closely watching costs.

This manufacturer soon was assembling his product faster than his parts were coming in. He appealed to sub-contractors to speed up. They replied they could not do so without working men overtime, paying time and a half for overtime, and this being forced to increase their charge to the manufacturer.

Government officials got this news. But as of this writing they have not yet authorized the manufacturer to assume the extra cost. So he is still ahead of his sub-contractors.

This cost complaint is rather general. "Profits" in general are reported to be extremely low. If they go high, of course, the government will take the excess in taxes. So there's no point in making excess profits.

Even so, manufacturers say they are taking chances, hoping the government will help them meet costs. One manufacturer, after hearing Knudsen's speech, added a third shift, putting his plant on a 24 hour basis. He found the night shift 23 percent less efficient than the other two. That made him produce and deliver goods to the government at less than they actually cost him. But he is continuing in the hope that if the night shift doesn't become more efficient, the government will make up the difference.

Lions Meet Strong Foe In High School Gym Tonight

Tonight in the High School Gym at 8 p. m. the Lions tangle with Mecklenburg County's leading basketball team. The visitors playing under the title of the Swanks, have won ten of their past eleven games. Some of their victims have been Charlotte Y. M. C. A., Hudson and Larkwood Hosiery and others of the top notch teams from across the Catawba.

Their team is composed of several of the University of N. C. former players. Baker, high scoring forward of the Swanks, is now in first place in the number of points scored this season in Mecklenburg County semi-pro basketball. McCrae, center, was All-Southern during his years at the University and has the reputation of being one of the finest ball handlers to perform here this year.

The Lions, as usual, will be in there playing to win and even though they enter the game with their opponents the favorite, all the fans will be assured of seeing a well played, hard fought game, because as in the past the Lions team this year can really put the pressure on when they compete with highly touted teams from other sections who are supposed to win easily.

"Red" Smart, who was unable to play in the last game due to a bad case of flu will be in action tonight and if in form will give the Swanks a full night's work trying to figure out how he got the ball away from them.

SINGING CONVENTION

The Kings Mountain Singing Association will meet at Macedonia Baptist Church Sunday at 2 p. m. The Phillips Sisters trio and the North Belmont quartet of Belmont, Huff Stetter quartet of Shelby, Gasonia Gospel singers as well as local singers. Everybody invited.

D. D. Pope of the Woodleaf community in Rowan County spent 50 cents for enough turnip seed to plant one acre from which he harvested $130 worth of turnips, reports Assistant Farm Agent P. H. Satterwhite.

What's the Answer?
By EDWARD FINCH

WHY DO THINGS SEEM TO WHIRL ROUND AND ROUND WHEN WE ARE DIZZY?

THERE is a small organ located in the back of the head which is responsible for our sense of balance. When this organ becomes diseased or disturbed it can no longer contribute balance to the brain and we are conscious of being dizzy. During the dizzy spell the eyes cannot respond to the command of the brain. One focuses on one object and the second on another at the same time, causing the brain to see two pictures. The result is the confusion which we call dizziness.
