Garden Additions May Be Made Now

There are still many vegetables that the farm family may plant in the home garden as late s June. according to H. R. Niswonger, extension horticulturist of N. C. Stat College.

Sweet corn, field peas, Zealand spinach, Swiss chard, lima and snap beans, okra, egg plant, squash and cucumbers are good crops to plant. In the mountains, June is the month to plant the main crop of cabbage.

Niswonger suggested that the space between the rows of vegetables be utilized for a second planting of the same vegetable or a dif ferent one of the garden area

June is also the month to begin planning for the fall garden, the State College specialist said. soon as the early or mid-season veg etables have been harvested and if the area occupied by these vegetables is to remain idle, the land should - cleaned of all dead plants and vines.

Next step is the broadcasting of a liberal application of stable or chicken manure and acid phosphate and then plowing this material under. After each rain the land should be cultivated and the grass and weeds kept down so as to have the soil in good condition for fall plant ing. Other areas not occupied shoul be prepared also for fall gardens.

Insect control in the garden is Niswonger suggested dusting cabbage, collards, broccoli, and snap beans with one percent ro tenone dust to kill worms and bean beetles.

Late Started Chicks Require Special Care

Contrary to a common belief. late started chicks can be raised successfully even though it is admitted that oooler weather might be more ideal, says C. F. Parrish. extension poultryman of N. S. State College: However, to achieve this success few fundamental essentials must be adhered to. For instance, the grower should start with quality chicks, preferably those produced in North Carolina. If broilers are desired. U. S. Approved Pullorum Passed or Clean chicks should be bought. In purchasing layers, the poultryman should check on the chicks' parents.

Another essential is a suitable house, that is, one than can be open ed up, properly ventilated, and ample size to care for the brood For summer, the size of the brood should be reduced 25 percent. In other words, the grower should keep 75 chicks where he would nor mally brood 100.

For little, any material will prove satisfactory if it is highly absorb ent, not relished by poultry, and available locally. Crushed corn cobs, shavings, straw, sawdust, sand. and similar materials may be used. Regardless of the material selected it should be changed when it becomes damp and dirty.

A lantern or a 15-watt bulb burning in the brooder house night will make for faster growth, reduce crowding and curtail thiev-

Any type feeder that tends to reduce waste and from which the chicks can eat readily is satisfactory. Waterers that supply an ample amount of fresh clean water at all times are also necessary for chick-raising.
