OUR LOSS ...THE NATION'S GAIN

EACH one of the many men who are daily stepping out of the dress of the telephone worker into the uniform of our nation's defenders, is a distinct loss to the telephone organization, but a valuable asset to our nation's defense.

They are men already trained, self-disciplined and imbued with the true spirit of service which develops steadiness and self-reliance under the strain of emergencies. Bell Telephone workers acquire these characteristics through training, and the experience gained in maintaining the Bell System's ideals of service.

While these telephone men are performing their duties to the nation, they and their families feel secure in the knowledge that when their country no longer needs them in its armed services there is a place awaiting them with the telephone company.

At home are 25,000 telephone workers, who, though not wearing the uniforms of our nation's defenders, are working harmoniously to expand and safeguard the lines of telephonic communication so vital to the nation's defense program.
