WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

 suiting from reductions of exemptions under the income tax law.
 Some government officials estimate that as many as five million citizens may be brought into the income tax structure under such a plan. If the plan goes thru it will probably be labeled a "compulsory savings plan," or some equivalent designation, in the knowledge that the word "savings" has a good connotation which is readily acceptable to the people.

One school of thought in Washington has held consistently over a period of months that rising living costs justify labor's demands for wage increases. Figures just developed, however, raise an interesting question regarding this argument. Living costs, it is revealed, increased 3.5 percent between last October and the end of June. Factory wages, on the other hand, increased 22 percent, from October, 1940, thru May of this year.

At a time when business men serving the government in Washington are generally agreed that "business as usual" is no longer possible and at a time when one industry after another is curtailing normal production in the interests of defense, Washington observers wonder when politicians will come to a similar recognition in connection with "pet projects" of one kind and another, to protect America.

T. Leo Haden, Interstate Commerce Examiner, has recommended a 10 percent reduction in joint railroad rates on grain and grain products shipped from the southwest to Atlantic ports.

and Mrs. Paul Neisler and family.

A. & P. Adds Market

Housewives of Kings Mountain can now secure choice cuts of meats along with their groceries from the A. and P. Store as a modern market has been added according to Mr. J. C. Caveny, manager of the Store. The market is now open for business and is under the management of Mr. B. M. Barnes, who is an experienced market man, having been associated with the A. and P. Company for more than ten years. Mr. Barnes knows his meats and he wants an opportunity to serve citizens of Kings Mountain. The new market manager is married and was transferred here from Asheville and is a native of Charlotte. He is a member of the Baptist Church.

Both Messrs Caveny and Barnes extend a cordial invitation to every one to visit the new market. Mr. Barnes said, "I like Kings Mountain very much, and I will be glad for citizens to stop in and see the new addition to the store. I am here to serve the most choice cuts of all kinds of meats and seafoods, to tell the folks to come and see us."
