Showing at Imperial Monday and Tuesday

The most glamorous couple in the world—Vivien Leigh and Lauréncio Olive—provide the heart interest in Alexander Korda's "That Hamilton Woman," showing at the Imperial Monday and Tuesday.

CLOTHING A SOLDIER

The greatest men's furnishing shop in the world, the Quartermaster Corps of the United States Army adds to the old cliché, clothes make a man. Army clothes make the 1941 soldier—healthy and happy.

Beginning with his feet, the Quartermaster gives the soldier a wardrobe which the majority never dreamed of having in civilian life.

Boots? Yes. Leather boots for the cavalry, rubber hip boots, rubber knee boots, shoe pads or heavy waterproof work boots, arctic overshoes or galoshes with cloth or rubber tops, and snow shoes. Alaskan troops are issued waterproof walrus skin boots.

Shoes bought by the Quartermaster Corps are designed for protection against the elements and for comfort. A soldier with pinching shoes is no good on extended marches, or in drills, or in maneuvers.

The Quartermaster makes sure the soldiers in the eight southeastern states, are foot-happy. Each soldier is immediately issued three pairs of shoes on entering the army. Shoes that have been tested for long, hard wear.

Service shoes, are worn on the firing ranges, in the field, whenever the business of soldiering becomes tough.

Around camp and on leave the soldiers wear the service shoes they have saved for dress—the shoes that are shined brightly for inspections.

To keep the soles in good shape,

GRACE METHODIST
S. W. Johnson, Pastor

9:45 Church School, Frank Greene, Superintendent.
11:00 Morning Worship and sermon.
6:30 Epworth Leagues.
7:30 Evening Worship and Sermon.

even on maneuvers, the shoe shops are constantly in operation. When the troops are on the move, so is the shoe shop, in a unit on wheels.

Taking care of the army's feet is of prime importance. But the matter of shirts, pants, socks and underwear is considered just as carefully and handled just as ably by the Fourth Corps Area, which now has within its borders one-third of the army in the continental United States.

This summer the troops are wearing cotton khaki shirts, ties and slacks, and field caps. On heavy duty they wear blue denim or herringbone twill. When winter comes in addition to a woolen coat and overcoat, the soldiers will also get woolen slacks, shirts and caps if the weather is extremely severe.

And finally, but of significance, is the style of the uniforms. These wearable clothes are well cut and trim. The Quartermaster has made our army not only the most comfortable, but also the best dressed of any in the world.

The eight Southeastern States have a Corps Area Quartermaster headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., where Brigadier General James L. Frink, directs the far-flung operations.

More Married Men Drink Than Single

Greensboro, Sept. 8.—"Married men drink more than single," stated C. D. Cunningham, Director of the Alcoholic Research Department, The Keeley Institute, Greensboro, N. C.; here today. A study of the history of over 400,000 patients taking the Keeley Treatment reveals that the relationship of the drinking habits of married and unmarried men have changed sharply during the past forty years.

"Back in 1899, two married men came to us for treatment for every unmarried patient. Today, the proportion is six to one," Mr. Cunningham continued. The same study revealed that the proportion did not change during the years of prohibition, which were ended in most of the Country in 1934.

"While these facts are surprising, they hold no special significance beyond the further recognition that greater education of our youth is needed to offset the natural tendency to yield more readily to temptation when a man sets up a home for himself. This is verified by the additional fact that the heaviest drinking is done in the early thirties," Mr. Cunningham concluded.

It's the FLAVOR that COUNTS

FLAVOR is one of the most important factors to consider in buying milk—yet many women have never stopped to think that flavor in milk differs. But flavor in any food or beverage is important: why is coffee so carefully blended by coffee roasting plants? To give it better flavor. Why do home makers often pay extra for certain foods that have a different, satisfying, or delightful taste? Because this taste—the flavor—pleases. Why not insist upon fine flavor in this important part of the daily diet—the table MILK that is served and the milk used in cooking!
