Cotton Farmers To Get New U. S. Test Service

North Carolina cotton growers are getting "another good break" in the U. S. Department of Agriculture's cotton testing service, designed to improve the quality of Southern cotton, says Tom Cornwell, Cleveland County cotton farmer and member of the State AAA committee.

The Cotton Service Testing Act, passed by the 77th Congress last April, provides that the department shall begin immediately a program of testing the various qualities of and yarns submitted by farmer growers and breeders of cotton. Fees for the tests, which will be conducted at Clemson College, S. C., Texas A. and M., and in Washington, D. C., will range from 20 cents per sample for fiber length analyses to $50 for a complete fiber-yarn spinning test of material submitted.

The service is scheduled to begin immediately but necessary preparations for the new work may cause some delay in full-schedule operations, Mr. Cornwell says.

In the past cotton breeders have had little or no information of a technical nature relating to the quality of the cottons they have developed. Years of commercial use have been required in the past to show definitely whether the cottons had qualities asked for by manufacturers.

The new testing service will be set up to give growers and breeders the desired information quickly through the use of small samples of lint. The service also is expected to be open to cotton mills for testing yarns in the future. Several mills already have asked permission to submit cotton samples, the AAA committee-man adds.

Vitamins Important In Animal Breeding

The success with which North Carolina farmers raise their pig, lamb, and calf crops to meet expanding national food needs may depend in a large part on the kind of rations they supply their breeding stock, says Earl H. Hostetler, professor of animal husbandry at N. C.

Rats are well fortified with vitamins and minerals are required for normal reproduction and Vitamins A, E, and C have received most attention in relation to reproduction.
Carotene, which is present in well-cured green hay, fresh green pasture, grass, well-made corn, peas and legume silage, and yellow varieties of carrots, squash, and sweet potatoes, is the principal source of Vitamin A, highly essential in the reproduction of all farm animals.
However, Hostetler pointed out, carotene is rapidly destroyed in feeds, especially under conditions of poor storage, so precautions must be taken to provide adequate amounts particularly to pregnant animals.
The most effective help which a civilian can give to Uncle Sam is to buy Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps as often as possible.
