THE POCKETBOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

One year's worth of knowledge in a handy little book. It's the perfect travel companion for the modern traveler.

THIS AND THAT
 By H. Y. Bell

What strange monkey tricks men will try to get a little publicity. Take Ted Terry who saddled a bull and rode him from Idaho to the World's Fair in New York City. It took him three years to make the trip. He wore out two saddles. I don't know what else on the three thousand miles trip. The horses, skunky Japs would like to get their claws on Australia. They have long coveted this rich continent. If they could make a successful invasion of this continent they would indeed have a coveted prize. The world's largest wool producing country, the world's four largest wheat growing centers, one of the largest mineral areas, and steel regions. If everyone has every thing they wanted there wouldn't be much left for a Jap.

Time has materially changed since the Civil War. My old grandfather, old Colonel Rogers, was Colonel in the fight between the states. He owned a large thoroughbred horse back in the sixties. That was the only way to the saddle. While in Monroe, big game town, General insulted the old Colonel. He politely mounted his horse and rode it through the courthouse. The sheriff said, "Colonel you should not have done that." The Colonel replied, "If you fool with me I'll ride him upstairs. Think I should drive your car through the courthouse today. Forget it! Those old rebels were daredevils. They never lost a fight, they were overpowered. Many noble heroes lived back in those trying days. They helped make America immortal. They are all dead but a remnant. Their heroic deeds lives and will live on down through the pages of history. Such gallant men as Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson, and hundreds of other gallant heroes that never got their names in history's pages. In passing they left their names inscribed on the memory of immortal glory.

QUOTAS DETERMINED FOR '42 WHEAT CROP

Marketing quotas on the 1942 wheat crop have been determined by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, according to G. Y. Scott, chairman of the State AAA Committee, with headquarters at State College. A nation-wide referendum, in which North Carolina wheat producers will take part will be held prior to June 1, 1942, to determine if growers desire the quotas to remain in effect.

In making the announcement, Secretary Wickard said a proclamation to this effect may be issued any time before May 15, 1942, but he wanted to give producers time to divert winter wheat acreage to more urgently needed food, feed and oil crops seeded under the war emergency. Present legislation makes the announcing of quotas mandatory to any year when it becomes apparent that total supply will exceed a normal year's consumption and exports by more than 25 percent. To be in effect, however, quotas must be approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting in a nation-wide referendum.

Scott said latest figures indicate the carryover of wheat on July 1, 1942, will be about 246 million bushels, and the 1942 winter and spring wheat crops will be approximately 650 million bushels. This will make a total supply of 1,000,000,000 bushels for the marketing year beginning July 1, 1942. Secretary Wickard recently set the 1942 national acreage allotment at 55,000,000 acres, the minimum provided by law, and requested that commercial growers voluntarily cut their acreage to 40 million acres.
