RANDOM NOTES

by Mrs. A. E. Patterson

Richard Ware Letford, seven-week-old son of Jess and Dick Letford, of Shelby, was here for his first visit at the home of his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moffatt Ware Sunday. He also visited his great grandfather, Mrs. W. A. Ware, who has been ill for some time at his home on Gold street. Mr. Ware was able, however, to be photographed with his son, Moffatt, his granddaughter, Jess, and her son, which according to my way of thinking, would make a very interesting picture—four generations—ranging in ages from seven weeks to perhaps 75 years.

"Salty" Saunders of San Diego, Calif., who spent the past week with his parents in Kings Mountain, says he danced with Shirley Temple in Hollywood and says she's much prettier in person than she is on the screen.

Kings Mountain citizens regardless of denomination are loath to give up Pastor Fisher, and heard with regret of the announcement of his resignation as pastor of St. Mat thews Lutheran Church last Sunday. In addition to his many duties as pastor of his church, he engaged in the activities of the Kiwanis Club, Parent-Teacher Association and was particularly interested in Boy Scout work.

Ran and heard on my rounds:—G. A. Bridges and Hilton Ruth so getting funds for War Relief;—Anna Thompson collecting cakes and cookies for the Floral Fair;—Mattie Howard collecting "whatever you want to give" for the Floral Fair;—Aunt Nancy Adams, aged colored woman, who claims to be around 100 or more, walking far up on North Piedmont avenue carrying her basket on her arm and in receptive mood for anything "you want to give";—Another colored woman, 60 years of age, who owns two acres of land where her home, uninsured, was burned—making plans to rebuild;—"Just two rooms will do," she says, "for I don't have long to stay but I'm too old to move away from my place now."

Life's Like That

"Wonder what they want this time but I had to help fix all their summer furniture out of the basement!"

Corvettes Protected Ships British corvettes in the 15th century were miniature frigates designed to protect the larger ships of the line.

Cut Production Time The time required to build B-24 Liberators has been reduced from an average of 100,000 to 30,000 man-hours.
