Easter in New York City should furnish inspiration for a column but when you come home worn to a frazzle — well it takes more than the memory of that colorful pageantry to make the pen go.

New Yorkers and visitors, with the weather in their favor, really did their "Easter bonnets" and

Stymie Law

On V-Day, when fighting ends and the peoples of a plundered world begin shouting their joy and gratitude in a thousand tongues, aerial bombs and floating mines are going to seem pretty cheap. All treacherous and destructive machines will appear in their right light again. Their values will show as minus quantities. Then slow, cautious men will not to work getting rid of them.

But there are instruments of war more treacherous than floating mines, more ruinous than any block-buster ever devised. Uncle Sam will have one of these on his hands when war ends unless Congress does something about it. It is trained on American factories and farms now, ready to start a bombardment on Armistice Day and nothing can eliminate the serious menace but new legislation.

Congress Can Save.
The United States has a law against profanity. It was (not enacted to stop scientific and industrial development but, if it stays on the statute books in peace time, even for a short while, it will be a government fiasco of creative work. It was passed five years ago to raise money for national defense and keep war-mongers from profiteering on the misfortunes of other people.

I am not criticizing the purposes of the act. America had to raise revenue quickly for defense, and right thinking people did not want to see a new crop of war-lords enriched with blood-money. Just the same, there ought to be a new act, worded to take effect on the day of victory, repealing certain provisions in the 1936 tax law which are war measures, ruinous to any people at

Bill New Business.
The sense of the law is this: Add up all the profit a firm made in four pre-war years, 1933-1936 inclusive; figure 25% of the total and call it a simple pre-war year's profit. If a corporation earns more than that in any year of war, it must pay the government 25% of the difference in a special tax.

Small business concerns can't grow if the law stands. Really big corporations can escape being devastated. Some will want to expand further and can't, but they can stay big. Here is why: by percentage, not much of a giant corporation's business is ever new business; its profits (however big) grow slowly. Small firms, not so. What will be the net result?

Service to Humanity.
Thirty little enterprises like you and I might form will be paid. They can't expand because their dollars of increased profit will be split two ways, 15c to keep, and 85c for the government. Many will die, as losses on development of new products wipe out their meager capital. Huge firms, which have no need for substantial growth, can develop new products with no risk to their strong financial position.

A big company's losses on new developments can be used to reduce taxes on profits from old business. In this way, government pays more than four-fifths of such losses for big concerns. It must be remembered, however, that big corporations are too few to solve the nation's post-war employment problem.

Small companies employ more than 80% of the nation's workers. They handle the lion's share of our national income. What their employees eat makes farm prosperity. If these little firms see a chance to earn a profit, they will get ready for peace . . . new business and new jobs in large numbers. But if until V-Day they remain scared to expand, America is stymied and so is the world.
